

PETTY THIEVES ARE ABOUT

Two Places Were Entered Last Saturday Night, But Burglars Secure Very Little Booty.

Possibly the same parties who broke into the N. Elden store on Water street several nights before were around again last Saturday night, as the store of Mike Friday, corner Main and First streets, was entered by the removal of part of a glass from the rear door, and a number of pennies were taken from the cash drawer and a couple cans of beans and salmon opened and a small part of each taken. Nothing else except a couple of links of sausage is missing. Two men were seen to enter the building at 2:45 Sunday morning by Miss Hattie Langenberg, who happened to glance out of the front window at her home on the opposite side of Main street. She did not think of giving an alarm, but remained at the window until the fellows came out, to do which they appeared to be in no hurry, this being about half an hour later. After emerging through the opening made in the door, the fellows crossed First street and ran among the shrubbery on the Curran House block, a few minutes later going toward the Green Bay depot. Miss Langenberg then went to the rear part of their home, which is on the second floor, but could see no more of the parties. Chief Haisos has been making an effort to locate the guilty ones, and made a trip to Milladore on Monday, expecting he would find them there, but the two he found were able to prove an alibi.

The same night some one entered the tent used as an ice cream stand by S. Merryfield, adjoining the postoffice block, and carried away about a gallon of ice cream. There was nothing else taken, but dishes and other utensils were removed from their accustomed places and strewn about.

National Troubadours Coming.

The National Troubadours will appear at Grand Opera House Friday evening of next week, Aug. 4th. Members of the cast are all home people and the entertainment will be given for the benefit of St. Paul's M. E. church. There will be an abundance of music and an elaborate display of costumes representing all nations will be worn. About one hundred young people will take part.

Son Succeeds Father.

Gov. McGovern on Monday appointed William H. Radcliffe, Eagle River, sheriff of Vilas county, to succeed his father, the late John Radcliffe, who was killed by two Italians. He also appointed Amos Radcliffe, another son, as county judge, to succeed George E. O'Connor, resigned. O'Connor was appointed district attorney to succeed Radcliffe, who resigned to become county judge.

Back From Elks Convention.

Dr. and Mrs. G. M. Houlehan returned from their trip to Atlantic City, N. J., where the former went as a delegate from Stevens Point Lodge, No. 641, B. P. O. E., to the national convention of Elks. The gathering was a very large one, representatives being present from all parts of the country, and they were royally entertained. They also spent several days in New York city, Washington and other points of interest in the east.

ADAMSON WINS MATCH

The Well Known Wrestler Gets Two Falls Out of Three Against Burns of Winona.

A very small audience was present at the Grand last evening to witness the boxing match and wrestling match, yet the receipts amounted to about $100. The program opened with a boxing contest of six rounds between Kid Friday and Young Prychla. The participants were well matched, the latter being somewhat the lighter in weight, but at the end of the sixth round the result was pronounced a draw.

This was followed by the main number on the program, a wrestling match between Adamson of Watertown and Burns of Winona. L. Carle of St. Paul was selected as referee, and his decisions gave general satisfaction to all except in the final fall the loser and his friends did not appear to be pleased. Adamson took the first fall in twenty minutes, Burns won the second in fifteen minutes and the last one was given to the Watertown man in less than two minutes. Adamson is a veteran wrestler, his first appearance here being a number of years ago when he wrestled with Jack Carkeek, but he still retains his strength and agility. Burns is a much younger man, short of stature and well proportioned. The contest brought a number of strangers to the city, coming from Winona, Grand Rapids, Marshfield and other points and it is said that considerable money changed hands.

Mrs. Hamilton to Stay.

W. J. Durand, a special agent for the Western Union Telegraph Co., was a business visitor to this city last Friday. It will be remembered that the late legislature passed a law limiting the hours of labor for women to 55 per week, and among those directly effected are lady managers of telegraph offices throughout the state, among whom is Mrs. Blanche Hamilton of this city. It will be good news to Mrs. Hamilton's numerous friends here to learn that the company is now preparing a schedule of hours by which she will be enabled to retain her position.

Many Miles by Boat.

Alex Ringness and Chas. H. Cashin are home from their lake trip from Duluth to Chicago. The trip was made on the large passenger boat "Minnesota," going via Lake Superior, St. Mary's river, Lake Huron and Lake Michigan, taking four days and four nights to cover the distance. The weather was pleasant except for a short time on Thursday night, when a squall caused many of the passengers to wish they were back on mother earth.

Now at Cascade Locks.

John B. Marchel, a former Stevens Point young man, but who has been in Oregon for the past few years, is located at Cascade Locks at present, where he is with the Wind River Lumber Co., where he will remain during the summer. He writes: "This is one of the most beautiful spots on the whole Columbia river and an ideal place to live during the summer. We are having a spell of very warm weather, but according to reports it is not nearly as bad as it is back there."

To Buy and Bale Hay.

Joseph Okray and Alois Firkus, both of whom have been engaged in the potato buying business here for several years, have formed a corporation to buy hay on an extensive scale. They have ordered the necessary machinery for baling purposes and expect to ship many carloads of baled hay during the coming fall and winter. The highest market price will be paid in cash and as the gentlemen have an excellent reputation for square dealing, they will undoubtedly do well in their new venture.

PAPER MAKER INJURED

Joe Walters Falls From Top of His Machine, but Will Soon Be Able to Return to Work.

Joseph Walters, a Stevens Point young man who is employed in the large paper mills at International Falls, Minn., met with quite a serious accident one week ago last Saturday night. He is a papermaker and while at work on the top of his machine making some repairs or changes, made a misstep and fell to the cement floor, about fifteen feet below, where he was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken to a hospital. He soon recovered consciousness and was able to be transferred to his home at that place last Saturday. When he struck the floor Mr. Walters fell in such a manner that his hearing was affected, but this is improving and it is expected that he will have soon entirely recovered and will be able to return to work. His mother, Mrs. Joseph Walters, Sr., (or Walther) will leave for International Falls this week to visit at the home of her son.

The $350,000 Highway Fund.

Chapter 337, laws of 1911, is the new state highway law, the study of which is especially directed to town, village and city officers. The law is so drawn that state aid is available in 1912 to those towns which have voted a tax to build roads in 1912 under the county aid system, but those towns which have not so voted will have to vote a tax at a special meeting held on or before Sept. 1st, 1911, if they wish to get the state aid in 1912.

The state highway commission has prepared a table showing what each county is entitled to receive from the $350,000 state highway fund available for distribution for construction in 1912. Portage county's percentage of the state tax paid in 1911 was 0.83; the amount due this county if all counties apply for the full allotment is $2,905. It would be safe to add another $500 to Portage county's share, as it is probable that many of the counties will not apply for their full allotment, in which case the amounts not asked for are divided pro rata between the counties asking for more than their full allotment.

Was a Lucky Accident.

Bernard Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Smith, met with what may be termed a fortunate accident, Tuesday afternoon. C. W. Brooks was driving east on Main street in his auto, and when near the C. Krembs & Bro. hardware store collided with young Smith, who was riding a bicycle and was about to cross the street from South Second street. The boy was thrown to the pavement, the auto passing over him, but fortunately he escaped injury, although his wheel was practically ruined. Mr. Brooks endeavored to stop his machine and avoid the collision, but both driver and rider were so close when each saw the other that this was impossible and as said before, it was indeed a fortunate accident.

Flowers Are Appreciated.

The following floral offerings were contributed in memory of little Carl Gussel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gussel, an account of whose death is published elsewhere in The Gazette. During the funeral services two hymns were sung by a choir of children connected with St. Paul's Lutheran church. Those who sent flowers were: Anchor, neighbors; carnations and roses, Mrs. Junchen and Mrs. Wm. Sterbert; asters and roses, Otto Reinke and wife; carnations, W. C. Henning and wife; roses, H. Frank and wife, F. H. Timm and wife; sweet peas, Mrs. L. Crossman; bouquets, Chas. Scholl and wife, Mrs. Emma Cooper, Clara and Regina Wyock; pansies, Mrs. N. Wyock; carnations and marigolds, Mrs. Sonnenberg; bouquets, Mrs. Adolph Roessick, J. E. Marshall and wife.

ENGAGE ONE TEACHER

Miss Florence Bunde of Milwaukee to be Assistant in Deaf Department of Our City Schools.

The board of education met in adjourned meeting Monday evening with all members present. A bill of E. M. Copps & Co. for 942,900 pounds of coal furnished the city schools, amounting to $2,545.83, was presented and allowed. J. W. Battin, representing the Standard Oil Co., addressed the board relative to furnishing oil to be used on the floors of the schools, saying that it is now in use in a number of schools of the state, giving good satisfaction. This matter was referred to the committee on supplies.

An application from Miss Bernice Cauley of this city for a position in the primary grades of the city schools, was read and referred to the committee on teachers. This committee recommended that Miss Florence Bunde of Milwaukee be engaged as assistant in the deaf school at $60 per month and the recommendation was adopted.

Bids for doing cement work in the Third ward school were opened and read as follows: W. L. Spence, 9 cents per square foot; J. W. Moxon, 8 cents; Roy & Harwood, 8 cents; John A. Kalpinski, 8 cents. Upon motion of R. A. Cook the bid of Roy & Harwood was accepted.

L. R. Anderson spoke of the petition recently presented by residents of the West Side, asking that a fourth grade be again established in the school there. He said he thought it would not be necessary as only a few pupils would enter that grade this fall, a total of 7, as reported by the clerk, and if this was done, he said, the deaf school would have to be moved, which would be inadvisable. He therefore recommended that the petition be not granted at this time. His report was accepted and approved upon motion of W. J. Shumway.

Bids for making a water extension and doing the necessary plumbing at the West Side school were read as follows: J. B. Sullivan & Co., $269; John H. Finch & Co., $246. To make this extension piping 525 feet in length would have to be laid, much of it thru rock, and after some discussion, the board decided to lay the matter over for investigation, as were also bids for putting piping in the High school to be used when blowing or cleaning out the boilers, this piping to meet with the sewers on Ellis street. The bid of Finch & Co. for this work was $119 and that of Sullivan & Co. was $128. The committee appointed to make the necessary investigations was composed of F. J. Blood, R. A. Cook and E. M. Rogers. Bids for putting in a toilet system in the Fifth ward school, connecting with the sewer, were presented as follows: Sullivan & Co., $489; Finch & Co., $523. Upon motion the bid of Sullivan & Co. was accepted.

The matter of selling the old wooden buildings on the First ward school grounds was discussed, the clerk reporting that B. L. Vaughn had made a verbal offer of $100, providing the board would give him time to pay the same. No action was taken. Messrs. Rogers, Cook and Blood stated that neighbors in the vicinity of the Clements garage, which is located in one of these structures, had complained on account of the noise made. The question of getting other quarters to be used for First ward kindergarten was spoken of and the upper floor of Mrs. Welty's residence on Ellis street mentioned as a desirable place. The committee on teachers will investigate and report.

President Young announced the following standing committees for the year:

Teachers—Anderson, Rogers, Boyer, Simonson, Todd and Supt. Roberts.
Finance—R. A. Cook, Shumway, Pasternacki.
Repairs and Supplies—Blood, Shumway, R. A. Cook, Boyer, Dittman, A. Cook.
Insurance—Rogers, R. A. Cook, Dittman.
High School and Text Books—Young, Anderson, Supt. Roberts.

Accident Was a Serious One.

The many friends of Mrs. Emmons Burr at her former home in this city will be sorry to learn that the accident she suffered last February is likely to permanently cripple her. Mrs. Burr was teaching a district school near Spokane, Wash., when she had the misfortune to slip from the steps of the building. The attending physician believed that her injuries were no more serious than a badly bruised hip, but as her condition did not improve as fast as expected, she recently had an x-ray examination which disclosed that one of the bones was broken. Spokane's leading surgeon is of the opinion that it is now too late for an operation and she may always be compelled to get about with the aid of crutches. Mrs. Burr is now with her son, Benj. Burr, at St. Maries, Idaho.

Harvey Dee Brown Talks.

Dr. Harvey Dee Brown of Milwaukee delivered an illustrated lecture at the court house lawn last Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Wisconsin State Anti-Tuberculosis Association, an immense crowd of interested citizens being present, only a part of whom could hear the speaker, however, from the position he occupied. The Union band added to the interest of the program. The points touched upon by Mr. Brown, who is a forcible and able speaker, have been published in these columns from week to week. The Gazette having devoted much space to this subject. Tuberculosis can be stamped out only with cleanliness, pure air and other precautionary methods. This association is doing a good work and is entitled to every blessing that can be bestowed.

DIED ON THE SOO TRAIN

Rev. Aug. Babiniski, a Former Pastor at Junction City, Expires on Velvet Special, Tuesday.

While traveling to this city to take part in the religious exercises at St. Joseph's Academy this morning, Rev. Aug. Babiniski of Superior died on the Soo velvet special just after the train passed Glidden, Tuesday morning. Messages were sent to Phillips to one of the local physicians and Undertaker Matt Christianson, and when it was definitely determined that life was extinct, Mr. Christianson prepared the body for burial. It will undoubtedly be returned to Superior, where the reverend gentleman's aged mother and a sister live.

Father Babiniski suffered a stroke of paralysis a couple of years ago, but had partially recovered from its effects. A second stroke was undoubtedly the cause of death.

He was a native of Long, county of Konitz, Prussian Poland, and would have been 56 years of age next Friday. He attended the common schools in his native land and took up a course of classics and philosophy at the gymnasium of Pelflin and Culm. From 1877 to 1880 he studied medicine at the University of Greifswald, in Pomerania. For the next six years the young man studied theology and philosophy at Louvain, Belgium, where he was ordained to the priesthood in June, 1886. Coming to the United States, he filled pastorates at Humbird, Junction City, Independence and Superior. His labors in the Portage county parish extended from May, 1889, to September, 1890. Father Babiniski had been pastor at Superior for nearly ten years. His address there was 14 Birch avenue.

More Deals in Real Estate.

John Okray has sold his business property on N. Second and Washington streets to Adam Mancheski for a consideration of $2,700. The ground has a frontage of 150 feet on N. Second, by 132 feet deep, and four buildings are located on the place, including a double store, part of which is occupied as a saloon. It is understood that A. Musial will open a shoe store in the vacant room.

D. J. Leahy has bought from Mrs. P. H. Cantwell, now of Minneapolis, a house and two lots on Normal avenue, in the block just west of the Normal school. The property has a north frontage of 100 ft., by 132 ft. deep. A one story frame house for several years occupied by Jas. E. Rogers' family is on one of the lots and Mr. Leahy plans to raise this another story and practically rebuild it. When finished it will contain twelve rooms and be equipped with all modern improvements. He is also negotiating for the erection of another house of the same size on the adjoining lot. This is an especially desirable location for people taking Normal students as boarders or roomers, and the new owner will have no difficulty in renting or selling the dwellings upon their completion.

Will Play at the Rapids.

The Stevens Point base ball team will go to Grand Rapids next Sunday and play the home team there in the afternoon. It is expected that a large number will go down from this city, both by train and automobile, thus recognizing the liberal patronage generally accorded us by our neighbors down the river.

Contains Forty Pages.

The Gazette issues an extra supplement with today's issue which contains the laws passed by the last legislature. This is the largest law supplement ever issued in Wisconsin, and although set in agate type, contains forty pages. Those who desire to get posted on the laws passed at this time, and every good citizen should, can devote several days to a careful reading of this voluminous mass of matter.

We're Getting Older.

Last week The Gazette entered upon its 34th milestone, the first issue having been issued July 17, 1878. For one so well advanced in years, The Gazette is still rugged and healthy and aims to improve with age, being equipped with modern, up-to-date machinery in all departments, the latest fashions of type, etc., and friends, patrons and the public generally can always find the doors unlocked during business hours.

Soon Follows His Wife.

Edward S. Walters, who resided in this city a number of years ago, at which time he was employed as a lumber grader, died in a hospital at Duluth a few days ago, caused by illness contracted at Virginia, Minn. The body was taken to Ashland for interment. His wife died at Ashland a few weeks ago and her remains were brought to Stevens Point for interment.

A Very Useful Article.

The Presto electric heater is a very useful article for which Arthur B. Case has secured the selling rights in this and adjoining counties. The heater is a metallic cylinder three inches in length to which is fastened a heavy cord with the necessary attachment for screwing into an electric light socket. By placing the cylinder in a dish or bowl of water and turning on the electric current, water brought to a boiling point in less than five minutes. It is almost indispensable in the sick room and will prove a great convenience in any home, hospital or office. Mr. Case has taken the agency for several other electrical devices manufactured by the Presto company of San Francisco and will exhibit them at the Krembs drug store.

Basket Picnic Saturday.

The families and Sunday school students of the Presbyterian church will have a basket picnic in the water works park next Saturday, July 29th. Teams will leave the church at 10 o'clock that morning. Let the older ones make plans for a day of frolic and fun.

Building New Power House.

The Wisconsin River Paper and Pulp Co. are about to commence the erection of a new power plant at their mill below this city, and install therein a new battery of boilers. The old boilers have been in use for sixteen years or more, and are therefore getting pretty well worn. They are in daily use, and it is consequently necessary to erect a building in which to install the new boilers. The building will be of solid brick, and the boilers will be of the best to be secured for use of this kind.

Rev. North is On Program.

Camp Cleghorn Assembly at Waupaca lakes opens next Tuesday, Aug. 1st, and continues until the 15th. An unusually good program has been prepared for each of the fifteen days, the speakers including several of national reputation. There will also be an abundance of good music and other entertainment features.

Stevens Pointers will be especially interested in this year's assembly because the name of one of our esteemed citizens appears twice on the program. Saturday afternoon, Aug. 12th, at 2:30, Rev. T. W. North, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, will lecture about "People, Good Natured and Ill-Natured, Wise and Otherwise." The following morning Rev. North will preach on the grounds, his theme being "The Christian's Ambition." The gentleman is a deep thinker and an orator of exceptional ability. We can therefore assure all who have not heard him that they may expect two very able discourses.

RIDE ON BREWERY WAGON

Automobile Belonging to Wausau Gentleman is Burned on Road, but Occupants Secure Ride Back to City.

Two Wausau gentlemen, F. L. Renich, district agent for the National Cash Register Co., and Chas. R. Davidson, traveling representative of the Washburn-Crosby Co., of Minneapolis, spent last Friday in the city. The latter acted as umpire at the ball game, and after supper both started for home in Mr. Renich's auto. When passing the Aug. Walkush home, about four miles north of the city, one of Mr. Walkush's little daughters, noticing a fire beneath the car, endeavored to attract the attention of the driver, but the latter, supposing it was the usual friendly salute, failed to stop until he had driven a thousand feet or more, when he realized the truth and stopped at once. Both men had suit cases strapped on the rear platform of the machine owned by Mr. Renich and when Mr. Davidson made an effort to save them, the former commanded him to run for his life, fearing the gasoline tank would explode. Davidson complied, and when the blaze died out there was nothing left but a pile of scrap iron to turn over to the company that carried an insurance on the machine. The tank failed to explode, but it might have been otherwise had not the machine been shut down in good time. Messrs. Renich and Davidson rode to the city on one of the local brewing company's wagons and left for home by train in the early morning. The remains of a comparatively new Suchart auto were brought to the Blake garage the following night at the request of the insurance company.

Veterans and Ladies.

Arrangements are being made by the members of the Grand Army Post and Woman's Relief Corps for a visit to Wisconsin Veterans' Home, Waupaca lakes, on Tuesday, Aug. 8th, spending the day there and returning in the evening. The trip can be made either over the Soo or Green Bay & Western roads, the round trip fare being $1.20. Dinner can be secured on the grounds, but all who wish may take their own lunches. With pleasant weather there will no doubt be a good attendance. On Thursday of the following week, Aug. 17th, the Portage County Veterans' Association will hold their annual picnic at what was known as the Phillips grove, now owned by W. F. Cartmill, in the 6th ward, when it is expected that many old soldiers, members of the W. R. C. and Sons of Veterans will be present from all parts of the county. The officers of the association, S. W. Andrews, president, Geo. H. Altenburg, vice president, and S. G. Stoddard, secretary, all reside in the city. More complete particulars will be announced later.

Two Aeroplanes at Fair.

James J. Nelson, Amherst; A. W. Prehn, Wausau, and William MacLaren, Milwaukee, the special attraction committee of the fair, have engaged two of Glen B. Curtiss' aeroplanes for daily exhibition during the State Fair. The committee is endeavoring to secure Lincoln Beachey, who recently flew over Niagara Falls, and J. A. D. McCurdy who flew from Key West to Havana. The contract for these aviators calls for three flights of not less than fifteen minutes duration, every afternoon, and that they will also cooperate with the military authorities in the war maneuvers on Saturday, Sept. 16th, when detachments of artillery, cavalry and infantry from Ft. Sheridan and Ft. Snelling will battle with the three armies of the Wisconsin National Guard in the sham battle.

BOOSTER DAY IS COMING

The Chicago Union Giants Will Return Next Wednesday and Everybody Can Boost for Local Team.

Manager Schreiner has booked the Chicago Union Giants, the noted colored team, for a return game on Wednesday afternoon next, Aug. 2d. This will be a "boosters day," and for three hours during the progress of the game, from about 2:30 to 5:30, it is expected that business houses generally will be closed that the proprietors and employees may attend. In addition to the game there will be a field meet, starting at 3 o'clock. The game will start at 3:30 sharp, tickets for which will be sold during the week.

In the field meet the fastest man on the colored team will run a hundred yard dash with the fastest sprinter on the Stevens Point club. There will also be long distance throwing, long distance hitting, circling of bases, etc. The home team will be strengthened by a fast infielder, Ollie Gregory of Ironton, Ohio, who played with the Ohio state league, and who has been signed for the balance of the season. He will be here the latter part of this week. This should put Stevens Point in line for the state championship. Everybody should turn out and be a booster for the best base ball team this city has ever had. We must stay on the base ball map, and you can all help in the good work.

Foresters Convene at Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dunegan will leave here next Saturday for Waukesha for an over Sunday visit, going from there to Cleveland, Ohio, where Mr. Dunegan will be one of the Wisconsin delegates to the international convention, Catholic Order of Foresters, in session next week. Their children will visit relatives in Waukesha and Milwaukee.

The Uncertainty of Life.

Relative to the sudden death of Edward Merry, brother of Letter Carrier J. W. Merry of this city, which was mentioned in these columns last week, the Waukesha Dispatch says: The uncertainty of life was sadly exemplified Wednesday morning when Edward Merry, an electrician employed by the Waukesha Gas & Electric company, started on his daily duties. He had climbed a pole at the corner of Main and Barstow streets and was about to fix some apparatus when he met death by electrocution. The only explanation of his sudden ending is that he short-circuited some of the wires, which permitted a current carrying a 2,300 voltage to pass through his body. Before fellow workmen could reach him life was extinct. The body was taken down from the pole and removed to Gaspar's undertaking rooms.

Mr. Merry came to Waukesha only about three months ago, his former home having been at Neenah, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Merry, are living. He was at first employed here by the telephone company.

Mr. Merry was married and resided at 216 College avenue. Besides his wife and parents, he is survived by one brother, J. W. Merry, of Stevens Point.

38 BECOME NOVICES

Eight Other Young Women Take Final Vows at St. Joseph's Academy—Bishop Fox Officiates.

Impressive services were held at St. Joseph's Academy, just north of the Stevens Point city limits, this morning, when thirty-eight young women joined the order of St. Joseph sisterhood as novices and eight others took the perpetual or final vows. Bishop Fox of Green Bay administered the obligation and also preached a thoughtful sermon. Nearly all the Catholic clergymen in Portage county were present, as were also a number of priests from a distance. Relatives and friends of the candidates attended in large numbers, remaining for the informal reception being held this afternoon.

The local academy is the mother house or headquarters of the order, practically all the members of which return here for a portion of the summer or to spend the entire vacation period of three months. At present nearly three hundred Sisters are housed in the big building at the north end of Union street.

Entertain the Subs.

Ladies who have acted as substitutes at the various meetings of the Wah-pi-pin-ne-kan Club during the past year, were entertained at the home of Mrs. E. A. Sherman on Clark street last Saturday afternoon. Whist was played at six tables and when the final scores were counted Mrs. John W. Clifford was awarded first prize, a souvenir spoon, and the consolation, a handsome dollie, was given Miss Sadie Buck. Refreshments were served and the afternoon was voted a delightful one by all who had the pleasure of attending.

Rich and Handsome.

Work on the new government post-office in this city has progressed very slowly during the past few weeks, owing to delay in the arrival of granite and marble, long since contracted for by Mr. Corse. The marble comes from Vermont, that to be used in the walls to be dark with light streaks running through it. The granite, which comes from South Carolina, will also be gray and both will be rich and handsome in appearance. Samples of both the granite and marble have been received by Postmaster Frost.

CAUGHT BY CUPID'S DART

Miss Marjorie J. Smith Becomes the Bride of E. H. Clay—Are Now on Wedding Trip to the Soo.

E. H. Clay and Miss Marjorie J. Smith, both popular young people of this city, were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. T. Smith, 627 Elk street, at 10 o'clock last Thursday morning. Rev. T. W. North, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, performing the interesting ceremony, which was preceded by the playing of Mendelssohn's wedding march by Miss Frances Baker. There were no attendants, but the immediate relatives and a number of intimate friends were present. "Oh Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly" were sung by Mrs. North while the ceremony was being performed, and thereafter a wedding breakfast was served by the Misses Norma Jauch, Frances Baker and Cecile Boursier, about thirty being present.

The young couple took the afternoon train on the G. B. & W. R. R. for a trip to Green Bay, Keweenaw and other points, thence north as far as Sault Ste. Marie, expecting to be gone until the last of this week, after which they will return to Stevens Point, their future home. The bride is one of Stevens Point's brightest and best little ladies, one who is esteemed and loved by all who know her. She is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith and has always resided in this city. The groom is employed in the office of his father, Peter Clay, manager of the Joerns Bros.' table and desk plant, and has resided with his parents here for the past six years. He is an industrious, energetic young man, and in every way competent to make life a success for himself and bride. Mrs. John Thiel of Manitowoc, sister of the bride, and Oscar Reinke of Sheboygan, were the out of town guests present.

Was Found Not Guilty.

Justice Park's court was taken up last Thursday by a case against Jos. Printz, who keeps a saloon in the Curran block on N. Second street. Printz was charged with selling liquor to two minors on the 14th of July, the complaint being made by Mrs. Julia Powe, mother of Paul Powe. A jury trial was demanded and the following jurors selected: Robt. Maine, M. Cassidy, H. J. Finch, F. J. Blake, Frank Peickert and Arthur Jakway. Young Powe testified that he bought two drinks for four other young fellows who were with him, and they also testified that Powe drank at the same time they did. This testimony was contradicted by Printz, his bartender and two other men, Alex Firkus and John Printz. Wm. Moody also stated that Printz refused to sell these boys liquor. After being out about 40 minutes the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. The state was represented by Walter Murat and the defendant by T. H. Hanna.

Remembered the Widow.

The widow of the late John Wilmot, who was killed near Superior by a wreck on the Soo on the 5th inst., has received the sum of $6,000 in cash from the railroad company, which also paid the funeral expenses. This is certainly a philanthropic act on the part of the railroad company and is no doubt greatly appreciated on the part of the widow, other relatives and many friends of the unfortunate young man, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilmot, reside in the village of Plover, as a settlement was made without trouble or litigation. Mrs. Wilmot's home is at Westboro.

Shade for the Dairy Herd.

The importance of plenty of shade for the dairy herd cannot be over-estimated. During dry, hot weather the cows may be advantageously housed in darkened, well ventilated stables where the flies are not so bothersome. An abundance of pure, cold water should always be accessible while plenty of green, succulent food should compose the major part of the ration.

In case of drought it is vastly preferable to keep the best animals over this period than to sell them and later on by new foundation stock at advanced prices.

Farm Stock Benefitted.

During periods of excessive heat work horses are liable to suffer from sunstroke. The animal husbandry department of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin gives the following advice on this subject: Sick or soft horses or those afflicted with indigestion are most liable to succumb. Every precaution should be taken by the owner to fit the animals to withstand labor in hot weather. Young horses, especially, should be worked lightly during extreme heat and care should be observed to prevent indigestion developing.

Such preventive precautions as feeding hay only at night and morning, giving pure, clean drinking water before meals and in small quantities throughout the day, removing the harness at noon and allowing sufficient time for rest and mastication of the food should be practiced. The horses should be groomed at least once a day and their stable should be frequently cleaned and thoroughly ventilated and screened. Little corn should be fed as it is too heating but sound old oats can be plentifully supplied. Shading the horse's head while at work is advisable but absolutely avoid using heavy, wet sponges for this purpose.

Robbed Corner Grocery.

The grocery store of Nicholas Eiden, at the corner of Water and Wisconsin streets, was broken into last Thursday evening and a quantity of cookies, fruit, fish and cigars were carried away. No money had been left in the cash drawer the night before and the intruders were no doubt disappointed when they opened it and found it empty.

AUTO DRIVER IS KILLED

Lewis Strang, Chauffeur in Reliance Run, Meets Death at Blue River Last Thursday.

Lewis Strang, driver of one of the automobiles which passed through this city last Wednesday morning on the reliability run made by the Wisconsin State Automobile Association, was instantly killed on Thursday near Blue River, when his car, which was going very slowly at the time, was wrecked by being thrown over an embankment. He was accompanied by three other men and when they were about to cross a bridge at Blue River, a village on the Wisconsin and Blue rivers, Strang turned out to pass a team which was going in the same direction. The road was very high and narrow and suddenly the embankment gave way and the car tipped over. The other three men saved themselves by jumping, but Strang was caught beneath the car and his life crushed out. He was a young man about 32 years of age, and of late had been working for the Case Co. at Racine. He was a noted driver and had taken part in many auto races in the past.

Andrew owns an excellent farm in Buena Vista, but because of poor health he decided to change his vocation.

Returned From the West.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Sellers returned last Friday morning from a visit to the Pacific coast. When they left here a month ago they were accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Southwick and they took the southern route via the Santa Fe and visited various points in California, Oregon, Washington and other coast cities. Mr. and Mrs. Sellers returned over the Canadian Pacific. While at one of the large hotels in San Francisco they experienced a shock they will never forget, caused by the recent earthquake. At that time, however, comparatively little damage was done. Mr. and Mrs. Sellers greatly enjoyed their trip, but both say "Stevens Point, Portage county, Wis., is good enough for us."

Back From Convention.

L. J. Seeger of this city, district agent for the Milwaukee Mutual Life Insurance Co., returned from the Cream City on Thursday, where he attended the national annual convention of that company. Chas. Weinfeld of Wausau carried off second honors for writing the greatest amount of insurance during the past year, amounting to $1,001,500, while Dr. C. E. Albright of Milwaukee was first in line with $1,791,000, the highest ever written by one agent. Mr. Weinfeld was also elected a member of the standing committee. The total insurance in force during the year was $125,559,000, which sum was an increase of $67,000,000 over that of the preceding year. The average rate of interest during the year was 5 1/2 per cent., a marked increase over other years. The company paid out during the year $13,000,000 in death losses and $12,425,000 in dividends, an increase of $1,447,310 over the preceding year.

International Dairy Show.

The International Dairy Show, to be held at Milwaukee in the Milwaukee Auditorium, October 10th to 18th this year, will be the greatest dairy exposition ever held in this or any other country. Inquiries are being received from all parts of the continent regarding the show, and even from foreign countries. It will be a most wonderful pageant of the finest bred dairy cattle, and a great array of dairy products and dairy machinery.

There will be over one thousand head of pure bred cattle entered. The prizes for cattle alone run to $10,000, and the best herds from the east and the west will meet in competition. In the matter of dairy products, there will be an unusually large and interesting competitive exhibit of cheese and butter and market milk. Over 20,000 feet will be devoted to an exhibit of dairy machinery. Among the interesting features will be a series of splendid cattle parades, showing the different breeds, and a great pageant telling the story of the dairy cow. A fully equipped working creamery will be in operation, and a fully equipped modern milk plant.

The dominant position of Wisconsin as a dairy state makes it the logical home of a great dairy show. The recent United States census shows that ninety-two per cent. of the farms in Wisconsin are dairy farms. There are 1,100 creameries and 2,000 cheese factories in this state. Surely an industry as great as this is worthy of a great exposition.

REGISTRY LAW SWEEPING

Electors Must Qualify by Appearing in Person—The Great Reform Legislature Passes Drastic Laws.

With the knowledge that in Wisconsin there are thousands of names illegally registered on voting lists, the legislature at its session just closed has made a sweeping change in registry methods. In April, 1913, in all cities of the second, third and fourth classes, and village and towns in which registry is required, there must be a new registry of electors. No old polling list will be used in whole or in part and no person's name will be placed upon the list unless the elector appears personally before the inspectors and requests that his name be registered. One additional registration day is to be allowed.

In the passage of this law the municipalities of the state have been placed on a footing with Milwaukee, where it is required that all prospective electors shall register in person.

The new statute will bar a large number of aliens who have been voting. Law requirements have permitted the registry of thousands of men of foreign parentage who have not been fully naturalized and who have in many cases taken only their first papers.

It is provided in the law that any person whose name is not on the registry, but who is a qualified voter therein, shall nevertheless be entitled to vote at the April election, 1913, upon the making of an affidavit in the usual form, one requirement in which is the declaration of citizenship.

Another law requires the clerks of all election districts in the state to forward to the secretary of state before the general election copies of all the new registry lists, to be used by the secretary of state for mailing lists for the state political pamphlet authorized by the new corrupt practices act.

AN ADVERTISEMENT IS YOUR CHEAPEST SALESMAN

Specimens of Syndicated Advertising Service

Supplied by The C. E. ZIMMERMAN Co. Chicago

The chances are that if you go into almost any store in a country town, at the present time, and tell the storekeeper that his cheapest salesman is his advertisement in the local newspaper he will laugh at you. He will laugh because he does not know what salesmanship means. It is the mere showing of his goods to any customer that has the good luck to come into his store, according to his lights. He does not realize that it is possible for customers to be enticed to his store to actually demand goods that they never thought they wanted before.

It is a comparatively easy matter to sell a woman or man goods when you have them in your store and can lay the wares right in front of them. In such a case much more than nine-tenths of the selling act has already been accomplished by the coming of your customer to the store. Even then a salesman who can get big results in the store is classed as high grade, and his salary, no matter how large, is considered a reasonable expenditure and, in many cases, cheaply spent.

To cause a customer to have a desire to come to your store, where no desire existed before, requires salesmanship of a high order. Such salesmanship makes new customers—builds your business and lays, in short, the foundation of your fortune. No retail business of modern times can make a great success without such salesmanship—without, in other words, the proper utilization of space in your local newspaper. Considering the results this kind of salesmanship obtains, it is the best and cheapest you can buy.

This efficient use of space in your local newspaper has been called salesmanship on paper. If you fill the space with forceful matter that will create attention, cause conviction and bring results, you have an addition to your sales force that may surely be called the best promoter on your staff. The results that are obtained from this salesmanship depend on the selling ability used. But no matter what results are obtained, the quality of salesmanship necessary is much greater than that required inside the store.

The big mail-order houses reckon that they must pay so much money for every inquiry they get. The amount of this sum is ascertained by dividing all the money spent on advertising and selling literature by the number of letters received in answer to the same. This refers to inquiries only. Not every inquirer becomes a customer. The securing of actual customers costs more. The money that has to be spent to get one new customer by those concerns would astonish the local retailer. It is usually not less than the amount spent on several weeks' advertising by the average local storekeeper. The salesmanship on paper that is necessary to do all this is the finest that can be got for money and it is considered cheap at the enormous price paid for it because it is engaged in building up a big mail order business with new material.

The local retailer can apply a lesson from this to himself. If those mail order houses spend so much money to get one new customer, why should a retailer not make an effort in the same direction? Why should he not adopt the same means of attractive salesmanship on paper? If he can bring even one new customer a week to his store with an expenditure that is many times below what a mail order house has to pay for getting the same results, it is worth while paying closer attention to this successful method of selling. If he can influence more than one customer, and it would be a poor local newspaper advertising indeed that could not do that, he would be accomplishing far more than the mail order house with their highly paid selling experts. And, as a business man, he could congratulate himself on a good investment. He could say to himself that he had in his advertisement the cheapest salesman on his force.

It is, of course, not always possible to readily get this strong, convincing selling matter in your newspaper space. You may not be able yourself to write it and you may not have any local person to whom you can turn. But that need not deter you. There are now on the market one or two syndicated advertising services that are designed especially to suit cases like yours. These services are supplied in a series of fifty-two advertisements with accompanying copper-plate engravings, one for each week in the year, at prices ranging from one dollar per week up. Many of the advertisements have been classed by authorities as equal to the best that have made successes for the big city department stores and national advertisers. Reduced facsimiles of several of these advertisements will be seen at the top of this column.

The advertisements shown above have received many testimonials from experts. For instance, Wm. H. Ukers, president of the Grocery and Allied Trades Press Association of America (a combination of the entire American Grocery Trade Press) and editor of the Tea and Coffee Trade Journal, New York, writes:

"I consider your advertisements the best I have seen in a long time."

The Retailers' Journal, Chicago, writes:

"We believe the sample of your advertisements sent us are the best we have ever seen."

After expressions like these from men who have spent long lives amongst the kind of advertising that has built fortunes for the shrewd users, the local merchant who neglects the opportunity now offered him to obtain some of these success-making announcements is missing the chance of his life time.

The editor of this paper will be glad to supply further particulars of the syndicate whose specimen ads adorn the top of this column and I advise early application as only one of these services will be supplied to each store keeper in his own town.

RICH HARVEST OF DEATH

Four Prominent Stevens Point People Are Called Within the Past Seven Days.

MRS. F. A. NORTON.

The many friends in this city of Mrs. F. A. Norton, wife of Dr. Norton, were pained to learn last Thursday that she had passed away at 5:45 o'clock that morning, after an illness of less than five days. For the previous few weeks Dr. and Mrs. Norton had been in charge of the Riverside Hotel, corner of Water and Mill streets, and the first of last week she was taken suddenly ill with chills and pains, followed by an attack of rheumatism, affecting her heart, which was the direct cause of death. Fears for her recovery were not entertained, however, until an hour or two before her death. The end, therefore, came suddenly and unexpectedly, she retaining consciousness until about ten minutes before death, which was peaceful and without a struggle.

Born at Winnebago, this state, March 29, 1870, Phenix Olson was therefore a little over 41 years of age. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Olson, and with her parents moved to Chetek, Barron county, when she was a child, remaining there until about 16 years old. She then went to Ashland to live with her sister, Mrs. Edward Bekken, and was married in that city to Dr. F. A. Norton, Oct. 15, 1891. They came to Stevens Point in 1891 and this city had been their home ever since.

Mrs. Norton is survived by her husband and four children, Earl, Harold, Hazel and William, the youngest about four years old, and who was ill at the time of his mother's death, but has now recovered. She also leaves two sisters and one brother, Mrs. Bekken of Ashland, Mrs. Nettie Anderson of Cameron and Edward Olson of Minneapolis. A niece of the deceased lady, Grace Norton, had made her home with her uncle and aunt for the past three years and, as will be seen by another article in this issue, passed away on Sunday afternoon.

No one in the community was more generally respected and esteemed among friends and acquaintances than was the subject of this obituary. Ever kind, good and generous, her taking away is indeed a sad blow to the bereaved husband and motherless children, who have been called upon to mourn losses by death three times within the past two weeks, first a brother and uncle in South Dakota, then the wife and mother and on Sunday the niece and cousin. In her household, as well as in the Rebekahs, to which organization she belonged for a number of years, Mrs. Norton was always a leading spirit and active worker, shirking no duty and bringing sunshine wherever she appeared. The good she has done, although taken away in the prime of life, will remain bright and dear as long as memory lasts.

The funeral was held at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, services being held at the Owen Clark residence, 350 Water street, Rev. John A. Stemen of the Presbyterian church officiating at the house, followed by interment in Forest cemetery. The members of Barbara Lodge, Daughters of Rebekah, about forty in number, attended in a body, occupying carriages, and numerous other friends of the deceased were present to pay their final respects. The services at the grave were in charge of the Rebekahs, with Mrs. W. E. West as noble grand, Miss Mary Frazer as vice grand and Mrs. M. E. Bruce, chaplain. The pallbearers were Louis Port, M. E. Bruce, L. P. Moore, A. F. Behrendt, Alex. Krembs and L. P. Johnson. Those from outside who were present were Dr. and Mrs. V. P. Norton, Grand Rapids; A. H. Norton, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Marston, Floyd Marston, Kilbourn; Mrs. G. Anderson, Mrs. Ole Olson, Cameron; Mrs. Mary Gussul, Sedro Valley, Wash.; E. A. Oleson, Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bekken, Ashland.

ARTHUR B. REDFIELD.

A. B. Redfield, another of the early pioneers of Stevens Point, coming here in 1853, passed away at his home, 916 Division street, at 7:45 o'clock last Saturday evening, relief in death coming after a long illness, he having been in declining health for the past four years, suffering from heart disease and dropsy. He was able to be up and about, however, until almost the last, but had failed rapidly of late, especially for about four weeks before the end.

Arthur Benjamin Redfield was born at Bainbridge, N. Y., Nov. 3, 1830, and was therefore nearly 51 years of age. As said before, he came to Stevens Point in 1853, and for a time taught school at Jordan and thereafter for a few years had charge of the Walker & Wadleigh saw mill at that point. On March 28, 1855, he was married to Miss Phoebe Otis, who was also a school teacher, occupying part of what was then the Judge Bean residence, now owned by the Jacob Patch estate. Mr. Redfield was among the first postal clerks on the Wisconsin Central road, serving until shortly after the election of President Cleveland, when he was succeeded by a Democrat. Thereafter he engaged in the grocery business at the South Side, which he continued until declining health compelled him to retire from active work. He is survived by his widow, three sons and two daughters. The children are Mrs. A. F. Wyatt of this city, John Redfield of Burley, Idaho, Mrs. O. Ostrander, who has been here for a long time assisting in the care of her father, Alfred E. Redfield of this city and Chas. E. Redfield of St. Louis. Two other sons, Martin, 6 years of age, and Frank, who was 35 years old, preceded their father in death, the latter dying in 1891. Mr. Redfield served in the civil war, enlisting Sept. 3, 1864, in Co. D, 5th Wis. Infantry. This company was in the Army of the Potomac and Mr. Redfield was a member of the commissary department. He was an honest, conscientious citizen in all respects, a man who was well liked in the community and was a good husband and father.

The funeral took place from the family residence at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Rev. W. H. Fuller, pastor of the Baptist church, officiating, followed by interment in Forest cemetery. Hymns were rendered by a quartet consisting of W. E. Buckingham, W. J. Shumway and the Misses Mabel Ennor and Rosetta Johnson. The pallbearers were E. McGlathlin, E. M.

Copp, W. M. Reading, S. W. Andrews, H. O. Halverson and J. R. Sawtell.

GRACE L. NORTON.

Grace L. Norton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Norton of Woonsocket, S. D., passed away at the Riverside Hotel at 2:30 o'clock last Sunday afternoon. She was a niece of Mrs. F. A. Norton, who died Thursday morning, and was in a precarious condition at the time of her aunt's death. Her demise was due to peritonitis, with which she suffered for about ten days before the final summons came.

Little Grace had resided with her uncle and aunt in this city for about three years and during this time had been a student at the Normal, a favorite with her teachers, schoolmates and all who knew her. She was born at Mariow, S. D. July 15, 1900, and was therefore a little over 11 years of age. Her mother died several years ago and she is survived by her father and step-mother, the former having been here for several days and the latter reached the city a few minutes before the death of the little girl.

The funeral took place from the Owen Clark residence at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Rev. John A. Stemen officiating with interment in Forest cemetery. The pallbearers were Carl Menzel, Jos. Miller, Harley Higgins and Seldon McCready.

MRS. T. BOURSIER.

Mrs. Theophilus Boursier, a resident of Portage county for the past fifty years, and a lady highly regarded by all who knew her, died rather unexpectedly at her home, 212 Phillips street, at 10 o'clock last Wednesday evening. She had been in poor health for over a year, suffering with heart and liver troubles, but early last week appeared much brighter than usual and she had planned on visiting her sons in Buena Vista within a few weeks. A turn for the worse took place Wednesday and she passed away at the hour above stated.

County Sligo, Ireland, was the birthplace of Winifred Feeley, where she was born Oct. 17, 1842, and at the time of her death was therefore nearly 69 years of age. The family emigrated to Canada when Winifred was a little girl, later coming to this county and located on a homestead in the town of Sharon. She was married there on Aug. 13, 1865, to Theophilus Boursier and shortly afterwards they moved to the town of Buena Vista, which was the family home practically all the time since. Mr. Boursier died six years ago and his remains were laid to rest in St. Mary's cemetery, near Custer. The surviving members of the family are three sons and a daughter, John, Joseph and David of Buena Vista and Miss Loretta, who had lived with her mother in this city for the past year and recently completed the elementary course at our Normal school. Another daughter, Mrs. Wm. O'Keefe, died in Buena Vista about ten years ago. The deceased lady also leaves one sister, Mrs. Owen Feeley of Stockton, who is the last surviving member of a large family.

Mrs. Boursier was an unusually bright, intelligent lady, a kind and loving wife and mother and a neighbor who will long be held in grateful remembrance by the many whom she assisted in sickness and distress.

The funeral cortege left her late home at 8 o'clock Saturday morning for St. Mary's church at Custer, where services were held at 10 o'clock by Rev. Geo. A. Schenmer. Burial took place beside her husband and daughter in the parish cemetery. Those who acted as pallbearers were John Dineen, Jos. Raymond, Richard and Wm. O'Keefe, P. Rowden and Geo. DeClarke. The five first named also officiated in a like capacity at the funeral of Mr. Boursier.

OTTO IS FIRST DEPOSITOR

Young Son of Dr. and Mrs. C. von Neupert is First Postal Savings Depositor in Local Office.

The new government postal savings bank was opened at the Stevens Point postoffice on Monday and Otto von Neupert, the 11 year old son of Dr. and Mrs. C. von Neupert, Jr., became the first depositor, having deposited the sum of $1.00 and received a certificate for that amount, subject to interest. Otto retired early the evening before, arose at about 5:30 Monday morning and stood awaiting at the front entrance to the postoffice for some time before Postmaster Frost, Assistant Postmaster Curran and other early-arising employees appeared upon the scene. He made known his wants and exhibited his legal tender in the sum of $1.00. It was nearly an hour and a half later, however, before everything was in readiness and Otto walked home the proud possessor of the first postal savings card ever issued from the new local government depository. BOUNDARY MARKS

Limits a Fiery Orator Once Gave the United States.

THE CANADIAN LINE FENCE.

Monuments That Cleave the Two Countries West From the Lake of the Woods—Irregularities in State and County Boundaries.

The fates of empires and of dynasties have been involved in the struggle for boundaries. The figment that the Rhine was the natural frontier of France ended in the downfall of the Bonapartes and the exaltation of the Hohenzollerns, thus rearing the neo-German empire upon the ruins of the upstart French empire.

In our own country the cry of "Fifty-four-forty or fight!" held a threat of the mighty conflict that eventually proved irrepressible. And in our own day the dispute over the Venezuelan boundary nearly precipitated a war between the two greatest nations of the earth.

It was a startling figure of speech, that of the western orator who, mounting higher and higher to a climax of bombast, described the United States as bounded on the east by the Atlantic ocean, on the north by the aurora borealis, on the west by the setting sun and on the south by the gates of hell.
Still, it was only a figure of speech.
Canada lies between us and the boreal aurora. The Latin American states to the south hardly deserve the infernal comparison. As to the oceans to the east and the west of us, they may be left to themselves. Not mine the task of determining what the wild waves are saying.

The Canadian boundary presents its idiosyncrasies and eccentricities. The eastern part of it follows naturally and spontaneously the regular water line formed by the great lakes and their outlets. Thence from the Lake of the Woods on the north of Minnesota a more direct course, man made and mechanical, is taken through the wilderness and over the mountains of the west to the Pacific coast. Nor has this course been suffered to remain a mere imaginary line. Man, having made it, has marked it well. Between the Lake of the Woods and the Red river cast iron pillars have been placed one mile apart alternately by the English and the American governments. These are hollow castings in pyramidal form eight feet high, with a base eight inches square, an octagon flange one inch thick and a top four inches square surmounted by a solid cap.

Into these hollow posts are fitted well seasoned cedar joists, with spikes driven through holes made in the casting. The pillars are firmly imbedded in the ground. Inscriptions in raised letters face north and south. The north side reads, "Convention of London," the other, "October 20, 1818." Beyond the Red river the boundary line is generally denoted by earth mounds and stone cairns 7 by 8 feet, though these are occasionally diversified by wooden posts of the same height as the iron pillars and painted red above ground. Through forests clearings have been made a rod wide.
Where bodies of water are crossed monuments of stone rise several feet above high tide. Over the mountains shafts of granite supersede the pillars, mounds and cairns.

There are eccentricities in state lines as well as in those which limit
the confines of the United States.
Thus the line that separates Delaware from Pennsylvania (Newcastle and Chester counties respectively) suddenly curves upward and forms a semi-circle just above the ancient town of Newcastle.

The explanation may be found in history. At the time Delaware was set out there were few points of latitude and longitude definitely established in the colonies, so that boundaries were generally expressed not by latitude and longitude, but by reference to some known location. In the deed by which Delaware was transferred there was ceded all the land for twelve miles round Newcastle, together with certain other areas. In establishing the boundaries of the present state of Delaware this description was taken literally, and part of a circle, with the center at Newcastle, was surveyed upon a twelve mile radius.

No other state has an arc in its boundary line, but many of the counties of Kentucky and Tennessee do.
Warren county, Tenn., is almost a complete circle. In many instances counties formerly circular have been expanded into irregular polygons.—William S. Walsh in New York Tribune.

The Diminutive.

lieve it's a kittenpillar!"—Woman's Home Companion.

OLD TESTAMENT TIMES BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDIES

A GODLY YOUNG KING
II Chronicles 34:1-13—July 23
"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth"—Eccles. 12:1.

KING MANASSEH of our last lesson had a bad son, Amon,
who reigned but two years,
and was murdered by his courtiers in his own palace. His son, Josiah, the central figure of today's study, became king in his eighth year.
By the time he was sixteen his heart had begun to seek after and to desire to serve the Almighty God. By the time he was twenty his religious convictions were so deep and fixed, and his authority as a king so in his own hands that he dared to begin the work of reformation. The idols and their temples and groves for idolatrous worship were destroyed. The valley of Hinnom, as already suggested, was desecrated and made a dumping-place for the offal of Jerusalem.

The temple of the Lord was repaired and cleansed of all its idolatrous defilements and worship and praise therein to the Almighty was restored. More than this, the king extended his influence for the destruction of idolatry into what was once the territory of the ten tribes, north of his kingdom.

Mistake to Assume That Wild Oats Must First Be Sown

What a force there is in our text,
"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth!" What a great mistake some parents make in assuming that their children must have an experience in "sowing wild oats" before they will be prepared to appreciate righteousness and become its servants! This thought is reflected upon the minds of the young, both male and female; rarely do they seek to live by a higher standard than that expected of them by their parents or guardians. We have known saintly mothers to unintentionally lay snares for the feet of their children by introducing them to ways of the world in which they themselves would not walk. Their expressed sentiment was,
"I must not put upon these children the weight of the cross, nor expect of them saintship; if ever they become truly consecrated saints of God they will then know the trials of the 'narrow way' and have plenty of them."

Alas! such Christian mothers have failed to grasp the situation properly.
They have failed to realize that, at the present time, there is no real happiness in the world except in the "narrow way."

A Certain Simplicity and Honesty in the Mind of Every Child

Of the few who do find the narrow way after having walked in the broad road their plaint is, "Oh, why did I not earlier find the way of the Lord,
the way of Truth, joy, peace and happiness!"

Notwithstanding the depravity with which all are born, there appears to be a certain simplicity and honesty in the mind of every child. It is that principle which must be used by teachers and helpers in general, if the child is led in the right way by which he would most quickly attain a relationship and harmony
with his Creator;

nor is it necessary always that there shall be a preceptor. At times, under God's providence, the message from on High reaches the heart and draws it with seemingly little resistance. The hollowness of life is perceived, the need of wisdom from on High is recognized, and perhaps by the servant,
perhaps through parental instruction,
perhaps through the counsels of a friend, perhaps by a tract or a book, the young heart is shown the way of wisdom and is pointed to the Lord.

We are to remember that the will is the real director of our destiny, under Divine providence, and that it is important to have the will rightly directed and established. Many a one is in the broad road of sin and selfishness—away from God today—who has in his makeup many good qualities entirely out of sympathy with his position and course in life. But without the will to guide, to lead, he goes downward. Similarly, there are some on the narrow way who have many physical, mental and moral blemishes of heredity continually drawing them toward the broad road, but who are kept in the narrow way of the Lord, not by the self-will of the flesh, but by the power of a renewed will. How important, then, the proper directing and fixing of our wills in youth! How much greater blessings we may enjoy in the present life, and how much more adequate preparation we may thereby have for the future life!

King Josiah of today's study is an example of the proper course for every young person to take. First of all, the heart should be given to the Lord in the days of youth, before the evil days and evil experiences have come; before one shall have learned so much of evil that the remainder of life would not suffice to eradicate it.

The Medicine Bottle.
In order to avert the most serious thing of having a child take the wrong medicine, mothers should adhere to the following rules:

- Never give medicine in the dark.
Always read the label on the bottle.
Never go by the color of the medicine.

When the bottle is refilled see that the label reads clear.

Keep poisons locked up.

Keep all bottles locked up in a drawer or medicine chest.

Mistakes of giving children carbolic acid and such like poisons in the nighttime make it imperative that mothers study and adhere to these rules, for sometimes such inadvertent mistakes bring about terrible conclusions.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Corrected.
A sandwich man who paraded Wall street bore aloft the legend, "Eat your lunch at Stuffed's and Surprise your Palet."

"There's something wrong with that sign," said a broker to a banker.
"What is it?"

"He's got the last word spelt wrong," replied the other. "Pity sign painters can't learn how to spell or consult a dictionary. Hey, there, you with the Surprise! Your palate's spelt wrong.
Have it fixed up!"

The next day the same sandwich man shuffled along and, sure enough, he had reported the error. The last word of the sign had been carefully scrapped out and in its place the word

A Parisian Patriot.

There are other things in Paris beside architecture, heroes and history.
At Duval's the wandering one can get a soup which is truly a triumph of genius, or he may sit at a little table and sip coffee "as black as night, as sweet as love and as hot as hades," as the Frenchman's approved recipe. Duval, it may be remembered, refused to raise prices during the siege of Paris in 1870, giving freely of his stock as long as it lasted. Here was a true patriot who disdained to profit by the high cost of living and the misfortune of the patrons who had enriched him.
He divided his loaf.—National Magazine.

A Thoughtful Office Boy.

The office boy, says a writer in the London Sketch, looked at the persistent lady artist, who calls six times a week, and said firmly:
"The editor's still engaged."
"Tell him that doesn't matter. I don't want to marry him."
"I haven't the heart to tell him, miss.
He's had several disappointments today."

COLORS AND VISION.

The Human Eye and the Mystery of Distinguishing Hues.

It is a curious fact that while there are seven colors in the rainbow—red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet—only three of them are primary —red, green and violet. That is to say, these three appear to be simple colors,
while all the others may be produced by various combinations of these three.
Red and green combine in certain proportions to produce yellow. In a different proportion the two produce orange. Again, green and violet combine to produce blue. It is said all shades of color are merely different combinations of the three primaries.

In keeping with this fact some of the ablest writers have held that there are three nerves, and but three, in the human eye—one to respond to the color red, another to green and yet another to violet. Other authorities present a different explanation. In the eye of the frog in the act of seeing there is a visible chemical action. There is a chemical substance exuded or spread over the retina or interior of the eye of the frog, called purpurine because of its purple color. Under the action of light this substance bleaches white.

Many today believe that the human eye has truly but a single optic nerve,
for surgeons seem able to find but one.
They hold, however, that in our act of seeing a chemical substance is exuded or spread over this nerve and that this substance has three different constituents, one element in it responding to the color red, another to green and yet another to violet. These latter authorities dispense with the three special optic nerves by providing our eyes with a threefold chemical substance.

the brain are one of life's great mysteries.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

He Was Wise.

"Now," said the intrepid explorer
after he had shown the guileless native
the inside workings of the brass watch and had noted his naive wonder at the mysteries of the mechanism, "I will let you have one of these for two tusks; then you can be the envy of the whole tribe."

The native gentleman frowned. "I traded a secondhand warclub for a bushel of those things when I was at the world's fair in St. Louis," said he.
"and there was not one of them that ran for more than a week. Got any chewin' about your clothes?"—Indianapolis Journal.

An Odd Habit Among Rooks.

Among the odd habits of rooks is the way that members of the same rookery have of intermarrying generation after generation. The males always choose their wives from among their near neighbors, and if one should be so bold as to bring home to his rookery a bride from a distance the other rooks will invariably refuse to receive her and will force the pair to build some way off. In the neighborhood of big rookeries outlying nests of this kind may always be found.

Silent For Once.

you got home late last night?"
"No. For once I was in luck. The people in the flat next door were having a spat, and my wife was busy listening."—Kansas City Journal.

Escaped With His Life.

"Twenty-one years ago I faced an awful death," writes H. B. Martin, Port Harrellson, S. C. "Doctors said I had consumption and the dreadful cough
I had looked like it, sure enough. I tried everything I could hear of for my cough, and was under the treatment of the best doctor in Georgetown, S. C., for a year, but could get no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery. I did so and was completely cured. I feel that I owe my life to this great throat and lung

DANCY.

Harvest is on and crops are turning out very well in this section.

The young people of this neighborhood enjoyed a pleasant Sunday outing at Whitehouse landing on the Wisconsin river.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Corlett are enjoying a visit from relatives from Michigan at their pleasant farm home in Eau Claire.

Harry Marchel and sister, Miss Grace, were those from here who attended the dancing party at Mosinee last Thursday evening.

The series of cyclones and hail storms that have passed through this locality missed us by a close margin, the only damage being a few windmills put out of working condition.

Roscoe Unland and two brothers and their friend, Mr. Carter of Peoria, Ill., the Misses Kathleen and Isabel Guenther of Knowlton, Miss Evelyn Johnson of Chippewa Falls and Miss Gladys Altenburg were guests of Evelyn Knoller and brother George, last week Tuesday. Owing to the rain storm that prevailed that evening they were obliged to extend their visit until the following day. An impromptu dancing party was given in Topham's hall.

F. C. Winters of Elkhorn was in this village buying hay the past week. Mr. Winters, who is a leading resident of Elkhorn, stated that they have not had a rain in that locality for three months and their entire crop, excepting corn, was lost. Unless rain soon fell their corn would not be saved. Valuable stock had been sold at a small figure for want of feed. This part of the country this year is fortunate in having no shortage in any crop, and having fodder in abundance.

A few days ago the extensive land holdings of R. R. Bourland of Peoria, Ill., in the Dancy drainage district were sold to other Peoria parties, who expect to begin developing the same the coming fall. They will erect substantial buildings and start cultivation. The crops now growing in the district cannot be beaten anywhere in this part of the country. In places it was too wet last spring, after the unusual heavy rains, but in other parts of the state it has been too dry, and crops are lost, so on the whole we feel well used. Where the district was too wet for sowing or planting grain or vegetables, excellent hay is now being harvested, so it seems some good comes out of everything if we look for the good side of it.

Swine Succumb to Sunstroke.

As in the case of cows, swine also should be fed plenty of green food in order to keep their digestive tracts in the best condition. They should be supplied with plenty of pure cold water and an abundance of shade and a sanitary wallowing place.

Fat hogs are extremely susceptible to sunstroke as they cannot perspire freely and have their body temperature reduced by the evaporation of the perspiration as can the horse. An excellent plan is to frequently swab the hog's bodies with water to keep them cool. A hog prostrated by the heat should be conveyed to a shady place where cool water should be poured on the head and neck but not over the rest of the body.

Remember the Speed Limit.

A law passed by the last legislature provides, among other things, that no person shall operate or drive any automobile, motorcycle or other similar motor vehicle, along any highway within the corporate limits of any city or village, at a speed exceeding fifteen miles per hour, nor on any of the public highways outside of the corporate limits of a city or village at a speed exceeding twenty-five miles per hour. It is also provided that in turning corners, in going around curves, at sharp declines, at the intersection of any street or crossroad, and where, for any cause, the view shall be obstructed, the speed shall be reduced to such a rate as will tend to avoid danger of accident.

Under the new law it is required that every person operating an automobile or motorcycle must stop when any person riding or driving a horse or horses shall give a signal of distress by putting up the hand or by any other token and upon request must shut off power until danger is passed. All motors must be stopped when the machine is left unattended. Two lights are required to be carried from one hour after sunset until one hour before sunrise, a bright light in front and a red one in the rear.

Will Effect Merchants.

The recently passed labor law lightening the burdens of women who have to work for a living will to a certain extent effect employees of stores in Stevens Point as well as the conveniences of patrons who have used either Saturday or Monday evenings to do their shopping. Merchants could by juggling and evasion keep the present store hours, but no one in sympathy with movements of this kind should encourage their taking this position.

The disposition is to obey the spirit of the law exactly as it was intended, so that merchants will keep store hours precisely as they are, except the few hours on Monday evening, when some of them keep open. The stores will not doubt continue to be kept open Saturday evenings, however. Out of town patrons of Stevens Point stores will not feel the shortened hours, for as a rule they return to their homes earlier in the day and when our home people become accustomed to the change no inconvenience will be suffered in comparison to the relief to tired female employees, particularly during the busy seasons in stores.

BLACKS DEFEAT WHITES

Stevens Point Team Beaten by Chicago Union Giants, Friday, by a Score of 5 to 1—No Game Sunday.

Inability to bunch hits was the cause of the defeat of the home team by the "Union Giants," a colored team from Chicago now on a tour of the state, at the fair grounds last Friday afternoon, 5 to 1. Notwithstanding the outcome, the game was one of the most interesting played here this season, and for over half of the time was an exciting pitcher's duel between Alexander for the visitors and Van Patter for the locals.

The home team scored their only run on a couple of hits in the second inning. After this Alexander tightened up and not until the ninth inning was he in danger. In this inning the home team succeeded in getting a couple of men on bases after two were out. M. Marx, a left hander, was then sent in to bat in place of J. Marx, and hit the ball for what looked like a sure hit, but the left fielder of the opposition came running in at the crack of the bat and picked the ball up from his shoe tops, retiring the side.

The "Giants" scores came in the sixth inning on four hits, a base on balls and a couple of errors. The first two men up were retired, Schreiner to Garlie, but the next two singled. Ramsey, next up, looked easy when he had whiffed at two, but the next ball pitched was right in the groove. He met it squarely and when the ball was relayed back into the diamond, three scores had been registered and Ramsey received credit for making the second home run of the season on the home grounds. Two more runs were made in this inning before the side was retired, a base on balls, a hit and an error by Gregory.

Van Patter worked hard all the way and with the exception of the fatal sixth he pitched a fine game. At any rate, altho he did lose this game, his work in the past is proof sufficient that he has "the goods" and we'll expect him to round into form again at once.

Fishleigh was the demon swatter for the locals, getting on bases four times in four times up, once on an error and three times on hits, one a two bagger. "Fish" is in the game all the time and is always there with a hit when one is needed. Trageser was also in form and the result was that the colored men were unable to pilfer a sack during the game.

The local management expects to get a return game with the Giants some time within the next two weeks, when, with a new man or two, it is expected the score can be reversed.

Grand Rapids defeated and the Union Giants at Grand Rapids last Saturday and Sunday by scores of 2 to 1 and 3 to 0, respectively, so it behooves the home boys to get busy as three more games are scheduled with the Grand Rapids team this season.

The Marion team arrived here Sunday forenoon, as per schedule, but owing to the heavy rain that fell throughout the day until late in the afternoon, no game could be played.

Electricity in the Air.

We have a comparatively new trouble with our teeth in which the teeth loosen in the jaw without apparent cause and drop out, leaving the dentist in mystery. In these recent years the general tendency toward baldness has been marked as unusually apparent. Are the electric waves used night and day in wireless telegraphy a cause? Professor Hensingmuller suspects they may be. The effect of electrolysis is marked as it escapes from the cables of a power station. He says that in the sending of a wireless message only one mile that portion of the electrical energy used is only one three-hundred-millionths of the energy expended. The rest goes into the air.—Chicago Tribune.

Better Than Kopenick.

An individual at Temesvar has surpassed the famous Captain von Kopenick; in fact, the German shoemaker is nowhere. The Temesvar hero engaged a gang of thirty workmen, went to a distillery which was closed and instructed them to dismantle it. Following this exploit he demolished a fountain and then sold it with the distillery fittings for old metal. Next he turned his operations upon an avenue and cut down all the trees and sold the wood to a carpenter. Then he vanished into space, and the good people of Temesvar are still in a state of ferment.—London Globe.

Slippers For Soldiers.

The term "a warrior in dressing gown and slippers" used to be deemed one of opprobrium, but it can no longer be so, at least in France, where the ministry of war has equipped the French cavalry with felt slippers as a part of the field kit. Perhaps the dressing gown will come later. The French war office has, it is said, proved by experiment that nothing rests the soldiers so quickly after a hard drill as to take off their boots and go about in loose slippers.—Harper's Weekly.

SCIENCE IN BUSINESS.

The Way the Task and Bonus System Operates in a Factory.

The task and bonus system was introduced by me in the Bethlehem Steel works in 1901 as a means of affording substantial justice to the employee, while requiring him to conform to the best interests of his employer, says a writer in the Engineering Magazine. The employee was not told in a general way "to do better," but had a definite standard set for him and was shown how to reach that standard, for which he was awarded compensation in addition to his usual day's pay.

The system may be described in a general way as follows: A card is made out showing in detail the best method we can devise of performing each of the elementary operations on any piece of work, specifying the time needed for each of these operations as determined by experiments. The sum of these times is the total time needed to complete the piece of work. If a man follows his instructions and accomplishes all the work laid out for him as constituting his proper task for the day he is paid a definite bonus in addition to his day rate which he always gets. If, however, at the end of the day he has failed to accomplish all the work laid out he does not get his bonus, but simply his day rate. As the time for each detail operation is stated on the instruction card, the workman can continually see whether he is earning bonus or not. If he finds any operation which he cannot do in the time set he must at once report to his foreman, who must show him how to do it or report to the man who made out the instruction card. If the latter has made an error he must make out a new instruction card, explaining the proper method of working and allowing the proper time. If, however, the instructor contends that the work can be done in the time set he must show the workman how to do it.

Took the Shilling.

A recruiting sergeant one day met an ignorant youth idling, with his hands in his pockets and standing before a house on the front of which was a notice informing the public that the building was to be sold. The notice ran thus: "To Be Sold by Private Treaty."

The sergeant approached the youth and asked him if he had ever thought of joining the army.

"Not me," was the reply. "You'd have nothing in the army worth talking about."

"Is that so?" said the other. "Well, how is it then Private Treaty has a house for sale and him only a private yet?"

The youth looked thoughtful and puzzled, and presently, over a pint of ale, the possibility of owning a house by joining the army grew into a certainty and the shilling changed hands.—London Tit-Bits.

Iceland Gloves.

In so cold a climate the glove must be put off or on as rapidly and easily as possible so it is made without fingers, and in order that no time may be wasted in distinguishing between right and left all gloves have two thumbs. You simply thrust your hand into the first glove that comes and your thumb immediately finds its way. There are of course drawbacks in the matter of appearance, for the dangling idle thumb looks untidy.

EPITOME OF A WEEK'S NEWS

Most Important Happenings Told in Brief.

Washington

Chairman Dillingham of the United States senate committee on privileges and elections appointed Senators Heyburn, Sutherland, Bradley, Bailey and Paynter as a sub-committee to suggest what recommendation shall be made to the senate on the request for an investigation of the election of Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin.

Senator Boies Penrose, Republican leader of the United States senate, corroborated before the Lorimer committee of that body the evidence given by Edward Hines, so far as he had been named in the testimony of the Chicago lumberman.

Former Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, a witness before the Lorimer investigating committee, emphatically denied telling Edward Hines of Chicago that President Taft was very anxious to have Lorimer elected. Aldrich's testimony was to the effect that Hines asked him what the administration thought of Lorimer, and Aldrich informed him that Lorimer was "not objectionable" to President Taft.

Extravagance in public and private life was scored in a speech Senator Kenyon of Iowa made in the United States senate. He thought it was time congress did something to decrease the cost of living. He proposed a bill which would scale the duty but preserve Republican protection of the wool industry, and asserted that congress has sufficient information to carry out such revision without awaiting the report of the tariff board.

Domestic

President Taft announced to the blue and gray veterans in reunion at Manassas, Va., that France had expressed a willingness to enter into the arbitration treaty being negotiated between this country and England and that both treaties will be signed within two weeks.

E. G. Lewis, president of the Lewis Publishing company of St. Louis, testified before the house committee on expenditures in the postoffice department at Washington that whereas a few years ago he was worth between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, he was compelled to borrow the money to come to Washington to appear as a witness before the committee.

The $2,000,000 monument of Abraham Lincoln, which Senator Cullom induced the last congress to authorize for the national capital, will be erected on the bank of the Potomac river near the white house, if the recommendation of the fine arts commission is accepted.

The co-operation of the governments of the United States and Italy with the New York health department in precautionary measures against the cholera invasion is proving so effective that fears felt for some time have been allayed to a great extent. Dr. Alvah H. Doty, health officer of the port, looks on the situation here as increasingly favorable.

Thomas P. Wickes, who was a Yale classmate of William H. Taft and who, while in the county jail at Oakland, Cal., received an invitation to the president's silver wedding, was given his liberty by the superior court. Wickes was convicted of obtaining $5 on a check on a bank in which he had no money.

The petition of 233 creditors for a blanket receivership of all the property and enterprises of E. G. Lewis was granted in the United States circuit court at St. Louis by Judges Dyer and McPherson. In his opinion Judge McPherson declared that if a fraction of the allegations made in the petition were true the Lewis difficulty revealed "one of the most gigantic frauds of the century."

The remains of four of the Maine's crew were found crushed amidships beneath the superstructure that had been thrown up forward in Havana harbor. It is more and more apparent that the Maine was blown up by an exterior explosion.

Louis Strang, the noted automobile race driver, was instantly killed near Blue Rivers, Wis., when, in an endeavor to avoid a wagon his automobile careened and went crashing over a high embankment. Strang was driver of a car carrying the technical committee of the annual endurance tour of the Wisconsin Automobile association.

It will take a full-sized regiment, just about 1,200 men, to make up the complement of the big battleship Utah, which is to go into commission within a month.

The birth records of John Adams and John Quincy Adams, both of whom served as presidents of the United States, and of John Hancock, a signer of the declaration of independence, narrowly escaped destruction in a fire which destroyed the Braintree (Mass.) town hall.

Regulation of corporations by a commission similar to that now governing the railroads was advocated by Attorney General Wickersham in an address delivered before the Minnesota State Bar association at Duluth. He declared also that the duty of fixing prices of commodities might devolve upon this commission, though he expressed some doubt of the practicability of this phase of the plan.

North-bound passenger train No. 5, on the Midland Valley railroad crashed through a bridge half a mile west of Avant, Okla. The bridge is 50 feet high. The structure had been weakened by a swollen creek.

Announcement was made that the Audubon National bank of New York city will go into voluntary liquidation because of misappropriation of funds by one of its officers. National Bank Examiner Hanna is in charge.

Every Italian immigrant arriving in this country from now on will be subjected to an individual bacteriological examination in the further effort to protect the United States from the scourge of Asiatic cholera.

The reduction of the maneuver division assembled at San Antonio, Tex., during the Mexican revolution, has been practically accomplished in accordance with the orders of President Taft.

North bound passenger train No. 5 on the Midland Valley railroad crashed through a bridge half a mile west of Avant, Okla. The bridge is fifty feet high. Six persons were injured.

John D. Rockefeller's real estate in Cleveland and Cuyahoga county, Ohio, has been appraised at $6,000,000, according to an announcement made by the quadrennial board of appraisers.

Teaching of theology by mail is proposed in articles of incorporation filed at Morristown, N. J., for the Correspondence School of Theology. Rev. S. G. Ayres of Drew Theological seminary is president of the school.

The water surrounding the wreck of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor has been so far removed that all indications point to an explosion from the outside.

Infuriated when informed by her husband that he was about to desert her, the wife of George Abbott fired three bullets at him, one taking effect, at Bloomington, Ill., and he may die.

Foreign

Revolutionists in Haiti now hold all important towns on the island except Port au Prince, the capital, and the downfall of President Simon is believed to be certain.

Miss Annie S. Peck, the American climber, accompanied by Carl Volkmar and five Peruvians, ascended two peaks of the volcano Coropuna July 16. Coropuna is one of a number of volcanoes in southern Peru, the elevations of which are given at 18,000 to 20,000 feet.

Lady Om, consort of the Korean emperor, Yi Heui, who abdicated in 1907, is dead. Lady Om was a palace politician of great skill. She was attendant upon the queen of Korea, who was murdered.

The veto bill, which curtails largely the powers of the British house of lords and adds immensely to the rights of the house of commons, was practically made a law. It passed its third reading in the house of lords with the opposition of only a single peer.

Jose Ramos and six confederates were arrested at Mexico City as conspirators in a plot to assassinate General Reyes. Anonymous letters revealed the plot to the authorities, who have also received a report that President de la Barra and Madero were also to have been done away with.

The Discovery of Chloroform

SIMPSON, HIS HOME AND TOMB

IN the long and notable list of discoverers in the domain of medical science—those who have done much to reduce the sum of human suffering during the past fifty or sixty years—there are two outstanding names that will always command a special measure of the gratitude of the world, namely, Sir James Young Simpson for his achievement in the field of anaesthetics, and Lord Lister for the successful application of his system of antiseptics to surgery. More, perhaps, than any others in a century of medical advance along various lines, both discoverers have practically revolutionized the old medical formulae and made obsolete forever the ancient dictum that physical pain was an absolutely necessary part of the human lot, to be borne as best it may, and, in the pathetic phrase of Robert Burns, "without remedy!" It is, however, with Simpson that we are mainly concerned at present, since the centenary of his birth has recently occurred. This took place at Bathgate, Scotland, an unpretentious town between Edinburgh and Glasgow. His parents, David Simpson and Mary Jarvey, were, in a humble way of life, of excellent report.

Having graduated at Edinburgh university with much distinction when but a mere lad, young Simpson was at the time of the discovery of anaesthetics in his thirty-fifth year, and already occupied the chair of midwifery. Prior to this, however, he had given evidence of the possession of a daring and original mind bent anxiously towards new departments of medical science.

While the young professor was giving to the theme of his chair a new highly, and, as likely—when applied to other departments of surgery and when certain elements of danger to life were eliminated from the specific—to become an anodyne of wonderful efficacy. How far and in what precise form it could be made so was the problem that Simpson at once set to work upon, and for this undertaking he was probably one of the best-equipped medics at the time in Great Britain.

While sulphuric ether was in some important respects a most beneficial anodyne, it was found to have certain disadvantages which not only frequently hampered the doctor in his work, but also contained elements of risk to the patient. These Simpson found it difficult, if not impossible, to eliminate from the drug, and so he besought him eagerly how to discover some other specific which might prove safer and surer in its effects. Acetone, nitrate of ethyle, benzene, the vapor of iodoform, were among those thought of and experimented with by Simpson and his associates in the attempt of discovery.

Most of these experiments were performed after the long day's toll was over—at late night or early morn; and when the greater part of mankind were soundly anesthetized in the arms of common sleep. Late one evening—it was the 4th of November, 1847—on returning home after a weary day's labor, Dr. Simpson, with two friends and assistants, Drs. Keith and J. M. Duncan, sat down to their somewhat hazardous work in Dr. Simpson's dining room. Having inhaled several substances, but without much effect, it occurred to Dr. Simpson to try a ponderous material, which he had formerly set aside on a lumber table, and which, on account of its great weight, he had hitherto regarded as of no likelihood whatever. That happened to be a small bottle of chloroform. It was searched for, and recovered from beneath a heap of waste paper. And, with each tumbler newly charged, the inhalers resumed their vocation. Immediately an unwonted hilarity seized the party, they became bright-eyed, very happy, and very loquacious—expatiating on the delicious aroma of the new fluid. The conversation was of unusual intelligence, and quite charmed the listeners—some ladies of the family and a naval officer, brother-in-law of Dr. Simpson. But suddenly there was a talk of sounds being heard like those of a cotton mill, louder and louder; a moment more, then all was quiet, and then—a crash. On awakening, Dr. Simpson's first perception was mental—This is far stronger and better than ether, said he to himself. His second was to note that he was prostrate on the floor, and that among the friends about him there was both confusion and alarm. Hearing a noise, he turned round and saw Dr. Duncan beneath a chair—his jaw dropped, his eyes staring, his head bent half under him, quite unconscious, and snoring in a most determined and alarming manner. More noise still, and much motion. And then his eyes partook Dr. Keith's feet and legs, making valorous efforts to overturn the supper table, or more probably to annihilate everything that was on it. Each expressed himself delighted with this new agent; and its inhalation was repeated many times that night—one of the ladies gallantly taking her place and turn at the table—until the supper of chloroform was fairly exhausted.

meaning and a distinction which it never had had before, daily experience in the practical side of his work was ever more and more impressing upon him the sovran fact of his profession that "the proud mission of the physician is distinctly twofold, namely, to alleviate human suffering as well as to preserve human life."

To a man of Simpson's sensitive nature, this truth made a constant appeal. And yet how little, hitherto, had the profession been able to do to realize it, especially in relation to the department to which his life-work was now directed, and where some realization of it was, perhaps, most of all to be desired! To nobody, therefore, was the first whisper of the good news of the discovery of an anesthetic that could relieve suffering more welcome than to Professor Simpson.

The year 1846 is the date of the discovery of the fact that "by inhaling sulphuric ether"—(the genesis of chloroform)—"the generality of individuals may be rendered insensible to pain." This discovery was made by Dr. Morton of Boston. News of the discovery which, so far, however, had only been applied in America to dental surgery, very soon reached England, where its merits were eagerly discussed. Its great value was immediately proven by various experiments, Simpson among others estimating it

PACT BILL PASSED

TAFT RECIPROCITY MEASURE CARRIED BY SENATE BY VOTE OF 53 TO 27.

WILL BECOME LAW JULY 26

Amendments That Encumbered Canada Pact Quickly Swept Aside When Time Comes for Decisive Action—Party Lines Are Wiped Out.

Washington.—The Canadian reciprocity bill was passed by the senate by a vote of 53 ayes and 27 nays, and the business for which congress was assembled in extraordinary session was concluded.

President Taft did not receive the measure for signature before leaving for Beverly as the house had adjourned before the senate took the final vote, and the engrossment of the bill must take place while the branch in which it originated is in session. The house does not meet again until July 26, when the final formalities will take place.

Every amendment was voted down by a larger majority than that by which the original bill finally carried—in all cases where a roll call was had. On the final passage 21 Republicans voted for the bill and 24 against, 32 Democrats for it and 3 against.

The only significant thing as to votes on the various amendments was the practically unanimous disposition on the part of friends of the reciprocity measure not to allow anything to mar the agreement entered into between executive officials of the Canadian and United States governments.

Most of the votes on amendments on which there were roll calls ran about 16 to 64. The highest votes obtained in favor of any amendments were those on the Nelson cattle and farm products proposition and the McCumber scheme to prevent elimination of the duties on grain in bond. The former was defeated 23 to 58 and the latter 21 to 54.

No big crowds filled the galleries when the end came, but there were many members of the house on the floor as the finish approached. There was no oratory—just a series of roll calls, which brought the main issue to a vote.

Ottawa, Ont.—The favorable action by the United States senate on the reciprocity agreement puts the government in a somewhat stronger position, but it is conceded that it will not prove a factor in breaking the present deadlock on the question in the Canadian commons. The leaders of the opposition profess to see no change in the situation and assert that they will continue the filibuster against a measure which, they claim, is the entering wedge looking to dissolution of Canada's ties with the mother country.

Under parliamentary rules the majority cannot force closure on a question of this kind. The opposition can delay a vote indefinitely by providing speakers to continue debate.

A dissolution of parliament and an appeal to the country in a general election with reciprocity as the issue is the only course left to the government, and it is expected that Premier Laurier will take advantage of the first opportunity within a fortnight. The new parliament would be able to enact the agreement before the first of the year.

BOSTON INVADDED BY CHOLERA

Woman Succumbs to Disease Which Is Traced to Sailors Taken as Lodgers—Men Disappear.

Boston.—Asiatic cholera has reached Boston and caused one death, while two foreign sailors who are believed to have brought the dread disease here after being taken ill disappeared and their whereabouts are unknown, according to a statement given out officially by Chairman Samuel H. Durgin of the Boston board of health.

The cholera victim was Mrs. Tamassino Mastrodenico, who died at the detention hospital on Gallup's island.

Mrs. Mastrodenico took into her home as lodgers a few weeks ago two sailors who were members of the crew of a steamer supposed to have sailed from an Italian port.

The sailors subsequently were taken ill and disappeared. Efforts are being made to locate them.

The children of Mrs. Mastrodenico are under observation at the quarantine station and the board has already begun the work of examining the many persons who may have come into contact with the dead woman.

Her house in the congested Italian district of the city will be thoroughly fumigated and all precautions taken to protect the 25 families, including some half a hundred children, who also live there. Mrs. Mastrodenico, until she was isolated, was attended constantly by her daughter, Mary, who slept with her.

STATE HAPPENINGS

Madison.—The fact that the department of physical training of the University of Wisconsin has instituted courses designed to train professional teachers of physical training, coaches and athletic trainers, has led to many misunderstandings. This course will not consist solely of four years' work exclusively in athletic sports and physical training, but will involve four years of regular college work, with certain additional courses devoted to a study of methods of physical training.

Sparta.—Mystery surrounding the death of J. W. Henry, a derrick engineer, who was accidentally killed at the material yards of the new Milwaukee, Sparta and Northwestern railway, near this city. No one saw him killed. His left leg was broken and there was a deep blue mark over the heart. It is thought the piston of the engine struck him. Monday night Henry applied to the nightwatch to be given a safe lodging for the night, saying he was in fear of some one doing him bodily harm.

Manitowoc.—The case against Rev. Emmanuel Harris, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Mauston, and Chester McNoun, principal of the high school, charged with illegal fishing, has been dismissed on the ground that there was no cause for action. The charge followed an attempt on the part of the defendants to enforce the Sunday closing law with regard to saloons which resulted in the liquor dealers closing up every business here on Sunday, even the livery stables.

Madison.—About twenty-five police chiefs of Wisconsin cities attended the opening session of the annual convention of the Wisconsin Chiefs of Police association at the Elks clubhouse. After the preliminary business had been transacted and President H. C. Baker of Racine had delivered his annual address, the chiefs were given an auto trip as the guests of the Commercial club.

Madison.—That over $10,000,000 are spent in the United States annually for food, shelter and clothing and that 90 per cent. of this sum is spent by women who have no adequate knowledge of money values, is stated in the new bulletin of the course in home economics at the University of Wisconsin. In any other phase of life, it is pointed out, the persons entrusted with such expenditures would be required to pass an examination.

Neenah.—Four more clubs similar in purpose to the Milwaukee Jewelers' club and the Fox River Valley Jewelers' club, will be organized at once in the state. A Wisconsin River Valley club will be organized, also one to take in the Superior territory. Counties on the southwestern border are to be organized.

Oshkosh.—The Fox valley is the scene of unusual activity in the line of women suffrage. Mrs. Monona S. Jones of Chicago, president of the Race Betterment league, spoke in district No. 9, and many farmers attended. A permanent organization was effected. Mary Swain Wagner is also here.

Waukesha.—Charles Peters was arraigned in municipal court on the charge of forgery. S. Salen alleged that Peters offered a check in payment for some goods, which Salen stated had been raised from $20. to $25. The defendant was placed under $500 bonds.

Madison.—The University of Wisconsin, leader in the "purification" crusade that swept a conference of the athletic world in the winter of 1906 has come to the fore again with a startling athletic propaganda. The regents of the university have added to the curriculum a full athletic course which combined with literary work, will lead to a degree of bachelor of arts.

Oconomowoc.—The presence of mind of Miss Stella Cunningham undoubtedly prevented J. K. Gilson and his daughter, May Gilson, from being drowned in Okauchee lake when their launch capsized. Miss Cunningham, who was rowing nearby, saw their plight and arrived just in time to save them.

Rhineland.—Business men of the town organized a law and order league to enforce laws and see that moral conditions improve. Officers were elected and a committee of 12 appointed to investigate and report. The organization grew out of the white slavery case and shooting of Sheriff Radcliffe of Vilas county.

SYNOPSIS.

Philip Cayley, accused of a crime of which he is not guilty, resents from the unjustly imposed sentence. His friend, Perry Hunter, turns to him for help. Cayley seeks solitude, where he perfects a flying machine. While soaring over the Arctic regions, he picks up a curiously shaped stick he had seen in the assassin's hand. Mounting again, he discovers a yacht anchored in the bay. Descending near the steamer, he meets a girl on the shore. He warns that the girl's name is Jeanne Fielding and that the yacht has come north to seek signs of her father, Captain Fielding, an Arctic explorer. A party from the yacht is making search ashore. After Cayley departs, Jeanne finds that he had dropped a curiously-shaped stick. Captain Planck and the surviving crew of his wrecked whaler are in hiding on the coast. A giant ruffian named Roscoe, had murdered Fielding and his two companions, after the explorer had revealed the location of an enormous ledge of pure gold. Roscoe then took command of the party. It develops that the ruffian had committed the murder witnessed by Cayley. Roscoe plans to capture the yacht and escape with a big load of gold. Jeanne tells Fanshawe, owner of the yacht, about the visit of the sky-man and shows him the stick left by Cayley. Fanshawe declares that it is an Eskimo throwing-stick, used to shoot darts. Tom Fanshawe returns from the searching party with a sprained ankle. Perry Hunter is found murdered and Cayley is accused of the crime but Jeanne believes him innocent. A relief party goes to find the searchers. Tom professes to know the whereabouts of the yacht. She enters an abandoned hut, and there finds her father's diary, which discloses the explorer's suspicion of Roscoe. The ruffian returns to the hut and sees Jeanne. He is intent on murder when the sky-man swoops down and the ruffian flees. Jeanne gives Cayley her father's diary to read. The yacht disappears and Roscoe's plans to capture it are revealed. Jeanne's only hope is in Cayley. The seriousness of their situation becomes apparent to Jeanne and the sky-man. Cayley reads the diary and finds a clue to the hiding place of the stores. Roscoe is about to attack the girl when he is sent fleeing in terror by the sight of the sky-man swooping down. Measures are taken to fortify the hut. Cayley kills a wounded polar bear and receives the first intimation that Roscoe possesses firearms. He enters the hut and finds up Hunter's body and Roscoe, finding it, moves the dead man's rifle. He discovers that Cayley is a human being and not a spirit. The ruffian is baffled in his plan to murder Cayley when the latter and Jeanne take refuge in the cave where a furious storm keeps them imprisoned. They confess their love for each other. Cayley, willing to seek the ruffian and kill him, finds Roscoe's cave.

Probably no apparition of the monster he expected to find there—no sight of him towering expectant, armed, anticipating all that Cayley hoped to do, and ready to frustrate it, could have been so terrifying to Philip as the thing he actually saw, which was—nothing. At least, so far as a first glance into the cave would reveal, his enemy was not there.

Cayley shuddered, not with fear, and yet with a sensation stronger than disgust. It was as if a leopard had been standing over the deserted lair of a hyena. A wild beast's lair it was and not a human habitation.

The floor was littered with feathers and half-gnawed bones. The rocky walls dripped with oil soot of his horrible cooking. The foul air of the place was actually insupportable. But the real horror of it lay in the fact that Roscoe was not there.

Cayley's reasoning faculties attacked that blind, irrational horror with all their force. From the condition of the fire it was evident that Roscoe had been gone several hours. It was almost certain that he would return soon. Cayley's arrival in his absence really gave him an immense advantage. A man always comes unwarily into the place he calls home. If Roscoe came back now he would have no chance at all against Cayley's quick spring and the flash of the long knife-blade.

Certainly it was reasonable to expect that Roscoe would wait for another moonrise before setting out on any serious sort of expedition, and, if that assumption were correct, he might be returning to the cave at any moment.

He strode abruptly back to the cave-mouth. As he did so, however, his eye alighted on something that made him pause—something so strangely out of keeping with its surroundings that it caused him—or he thought that it was the reason—a sense of recognition, almost of familiarity.

The thing which so evidently did not belong to Roscoe that it seemed almost to belong to Philip himself, was a gold locket. It lay on a flat bit of rock, which seemed to serve Roscoe's purpose as a table. The objects which surrounded it—an irregular piece of raw walrus hide, an overturned bottle of whale oil, with a smudgy wick in it, a sailmaker's needle and some ravelings of canvas, together with some scraps of food—all spoke so loud of Roscoe and made such a contrast with this bit of jewelry that Cayley's action in stooping to pick it up was automatic.

He held it in his hand a moment as if he did not know quite what to do with it, then put it in his pocket and went out of the cave. Only during the moment when it had first caught his eye had it really commanded his attention at all. By the time he got outside of the cave he had forgotten it.

Two or three breaths of the clear air outside of the cave were all he needed to revive him, physically. But to his surprise they did not suffice to rid him of the feeling which he regarded as superstitious, namely, the impulse to fly back to Jeanne as fast as his wings could carry him.

she was safe, he told himself. She was armed with a heavy revolver, was a good shot and had plenty of nerve. She was in a place, the only avenue of access to which would give her a tremendous advantage over any invader. So that, even supposing the worst—supposing that Roscoe's absence were taken to mean that he had gone to make an attack on the pilot house, there could hardly be a doubt that Jeanne would kill him.

His reasoning was all based on the assumption that the pilot house was inaccessible to any wingless creature except by way of the ice chimney. Even now, when his fear for the girl was amounting to a superstition of almost irresistible intensity, it did not occur to him to question that.

He steadied himself as best he could and crouched down in the shelter of the big rock to await Roscoe's return.

He had hardly settled himself here when he saw something that made him shake his head impatiently, and swear a little. It was the winking glow of an aurora borealis, off to the north.

Cayley gazed at the spectacle unwillingly, but still he gazed. And, somehow, though he fought the feeling desperately, it began to assume a personal significance to him—a significance of mockery. The whole sky was quivering with vast, silent laughter. Was it because he, with his fancied cleverness and daring in finding Roscoe's lair and waiting for his return to it, was really doing precisely the thing that Roscoe would have had him do? Were those sky-witches laughing over what was happening up at the pilot house while he sat here and waited? No intelligence, no sane power of consecutive reasoning can resist this sort of thing definitely, and at last Cayley's power of resistance came to an end.

He sprang to his feet, at last, dripping with sweat, in spite of the cold, caught up his bundled wings, unfurled them and took the air with a rush. Once he had jerked himself aloft to a height a little above the crest of the cliff, it was hardly more than a matter of seconds before he came opposite the dome-like mound of snow which covered the pilot house.

There was no light shining out of the tunnel entrance. But that was as he had expected it to be. He made it out easily enough; and in another moment had alighted there.

"Jeanne!" he called. It was not the exertion of flight, but a sudden intolerable apprehension that made him breathless. The word had halted a little in his throat. Exactly as he uttered it he saw down the tunnel, and in the pilot house itself, a tiny spark of fire, and heard the click of steel against flint.

What the spark illuminated were the fingers of a gigantic, hairy hand.

"Jeanne!" he called again, and now his voice came clear enough. "Wait a minute and I'll make a light for you."

CHAPTER XXII.

In the Pilot House.

Cayley had been right in assuming, as he did in his conversation with Jeanne, upon the subject, that Roscoe and the other people of the Walrus had never noticed the ice chimney, nor suspected the existence of the pilot house upon the cliff-head. Also, he had followed correctly the track of Roscoe's mind in the deduction that the two latest castaways upon this land—that is, Philip and Jeanne—must have perished in the great storm which began on the night when he fired the hut, and continued for so many weeks that he, like them, lost all trace of reckoning.

During the storm he had lived in the cave, much as Philip and Jeanne had lived in the pilot house on the cliff; he had, that is to say, in some purely automatic fashion, kept on existing. The mere momentum of a mature man's vitality makes it hard for him to die. But when the storm abated and milder weather came, he bestirred himself, as Cayley did, and set about digging a tunnel of his own through the great drift which had blocked the entrance to his cave.

The next time the moon came up, after he had completed the tunnel from the cave, he set out down the beach toward the ruins of the hut.

It was not mere curiosity which attracted him, nor any lurking fear, but simply the hope of making some salvage from the wreckage of the hut, or possibly, from the bodies of his two victims, in case he was lucky enough to find them. He had no doubt at all that they were dead.

His pleasure over the quantity and condition of the stores he found in the ice cave compensated for his disappointment over not finding the bodies of his two latest victims.

Evidently they had not even attempted to use such shelter as the ice chamber afforded, for it showed no mark of human habitation at all. They had probably wandered outside and died in one of the near-by drifts. Perhaps he would find them some day. For the present, however, the stores occupied his whole attention.

Very methodically he set to work, carrying them off to his own cave.

Watched Cayley's Flight to His Landing Place.

working without fatigue and without intermission—working so long as the moonlight lasted.

He was just setting out with his last load when, glancing skyward to see how long the light would hold, he caught a glimpse of Cayley on the wing. The sight occasioned him no return—not even momentary—of the old terror. He cursed a little because he had not his rifle with him; the sky-man soaring slowly and not very high, presented a mark he could almost certainly have hit.

It was surprising, of course, to see him alive, but Roscoe, in his present state, never thought of looking to supernatural means to account for the fact. Indeed, he was hardly more than a moment in approximating the true explanation. There might well be, he supposed, up somewhere in the face of the cliff a cave, or shelter, of which he knew nothing, and easily accessible to anyone who happened to possess a flying machine.

Skirting the cliff and keeping well in its shadow, he made his way with his last load, back to his cave. Here he spent a few minutes cleaning his rifle, making sure that the mechanism of the breech was working perfectly, and filling its magazine full of cartridges.

The moon was just setting, but the sky was still bright enough to give him a good hope of making out Cayley's winged figure against it.

Roscoe squatted down in the lee of the great hummock of ice, surveyed the heavens with keen, practised eyes, munching on a strip of dried walrus-meat which he had brought with him and waited very contentedly.

He had not long to wait. Long before the moon twilight had gone out of the sky he saw in it silhouetted against it, the sight from which he had once fled with such mad terror—the broad expanse of the sky-man's wings.

Instead of firing, he scrambled up to the top of the nearest ice hummock and from there watched Cayley's flight to his landing place.

He laughed aloud when he saw that it was not in the side of the cliff, as he had feared, but quite at the crest of it—where it was as accessible to a man who could climb a bit as to one with wings.

He did not move from his attitude of strained attention, on the summit of a little ice hill, until he saw a faint glow of golden light diffusing itself from the mouth of the tunnel that led to the pilot house. Then, with that queer shuffling gait of his, which was neither walk nor run, he began making his way inshore, over the ice, toward the foot of the cliff.

Cayley's tunnel was not at right angles to the crest, but bore off diagonally westward. Roscoe had noted this fact, and he figured it out from the top of the promontory, which formed the western boundary of their strip of beach, he should be able to command a view straight into the tunnel. Also, there was at this point a precipitous trail up the cliff. No one but Roscoe would have called it a trail, but that was the way it existed in his mind.

His calculation of the angle of the tunnel proved to be correct, for from his newly-gained vantage, he could see straight into the pilot house and make out clearly enough two figures there.

Once more he was tempted to fire, and might have yielded to the temptation had not the light been put out before he had fairly got his eyes adjusted to the distance.

It is to be remembered, always, that he knew nothing whatever of the ice chimney, and suspected no connection between the hut and the pilot house, except by the air. For anything he knew to the contrary, Jeanne might be able to fly, as well as Philip, or he to carry her with him upon his flights. Consequently, he did not suspect, when he saw Cayley take to flight again, that this action had any reference to himself; nor that the woman who was left alone would be on her guard against him.

The moment he glimpsed the shadow of Cayley's wings against the stars he began making his way, cautiously, over the crusted snow, toward the pilot house. The door was closed, but there was a light shining out through a crack beneath it. It was a glass door, but something had been hung over the glass so that he could not see into the interior.

Both Jeanne and Philip had made the mistake of assuming that the only way of access to the pilot house, except to Philip with his wings, was the ice chimney. It was a natural mistake enough—one that almost any but a practised mountaineer would have made.

Furthermore they had no reason—either of them—for anticipating an attack upon the pilot house while Philip was gone. They had been living here, now for weeks, in unbroken security. So, though the girl obeyed Philip's injunction literally and scrupulously, she did it without the slightest sense of personal danger, and indeed she would hardly have had room for such an emotion even if there had been a much more reasonable ground for it.

She was sitting beside the oil stove, in one of the farther corners of the room. The chimney hole was in the corresponding corner. The revolver lay on the table in the middle of the room, a few paces behind her. The pilot house door was directly in line with it, and almost exactly behind her back. The door was hinged to swing inward.

When it burst open she attributed the fact to no other agency than the wind. She laid down the red-bound book upon the bench beside her and rose, rather deliberately, before she turned round.

As she did so Roscoe sprang forward to the table and seized the revolver. Her failure to turn immediately had given him the second he needed to take in the strategic possibilities of the room.

His rifle was a clumsy weapon in close quarters. So, as he sprang forward, he dropped it and made for the revolver instead. It only needed a glance at the girl to convince him that she was unarmed. Quite deliberately he broke open the breech of the revolver and satisfied himself that it was loaded. Then he looked up again, blinking at the girl.

It was no wonder that Carlson and Rose had mistaken her for the ghost of the man their leader murdered. She looked like her father as a woman may resemble a man, and her whiteness, her fineness, her delicacy all increased rather than diminished the credibility of the idea that she was in fact his spirit.

The hand which held the revolver dropped nervously at his side. He swallowed hard, and wrung his cruel lips with his other great hand. It was then that the girl looked up into his face. It was then she uttered her first cry.

For she saw that he did not mean to kill her.

Suddenly Jeanne's eyes detached themselves from his face. A look of sudden alarm came into them, and she raised her hand to her throat, as though she were choking. She was looking past Roscoe, and straight down the snow tunnel.

"Philip!" she cried, "take care; he's here."

The snow tunnel was empty, and for aught she knew, her lover's body might be lying mangled in the monster's cave. She had thought of that before she tried the trick. But, even if that were so, that cry of hers might lead the monster to steal one uneasy glance at the door behind him; and even that would give her time enough. If he had not killed Philip, but simply eluded him, he would turn instantly.

That was what he did. He sprang round with a suddenness which bespoke a perfectly genuine, common-sense alarm. And then he found himself in darkness.

He understood at once that he had been tricked. Without wasting the time to turn back and look at Jeanne, he sprang toward the pilot house door. He thought she meant to attempt to rush by him, gain the snow-tunnel and throw herself over the crest of the cliff. He had not misread the sudden loathing he had seen in her eyes when they met his face.

In the open doorway he wheeled round, triumphantly. She had not got ahead of him that time. He laughed aloud into the darkness, and then spoke to her, with a vile, jocular familiarity.

But he got no answer, in words or otherwise. There was no outcry, no stifled sobbing. Nothing at all but sigh and whine of the wind.

He moved forward, groping in the dark, but stopped when he felt the pressure of the table across his thighs. He could do nothing without a light. He would re-light the candle, first of all, and then he would find her.

He took a bit of flint, a nail and a rope of tow from his pocket. He struck a spark, but it failed to kindle the tow.

It was at that instant that Philip alighted.

Philip sprang clear of his planes, left them as they were there at the tunnel mouth, and walked steadily up toward the pilot house door.

Roscoe, on hearing his voice the first time, had dropped the articles which encumbered his hands and groped on the table for the revolver. Before he could put his hand on it Cayley spoke the second time.

At that, wanting no weapon, confident that he needed none, his great arms aching for the feel of the sky-man's flesh beneath their grasp, he moved a step nearer the door and waited.

He saw Philip cross the threshold, unseeing—suspecting, apparently, nothing; saw him, at last, within hand's reach.

Just as he touched him he uttered a sobbing oath, and his great hand faltered, for Philip's knife had struck through, clean to the hilt, and just below the heart.

The effect of the shock was only momentary. With a yell of rage, he sprang upon Cayley, crowded him back against the wall, tore at him blindly, like a wild beast, and finally getting Philip's right fore-arm fairly in the grip of both hands, he snapped it like a pipestem.

In a moment Cayley got round behind him and with the crook of his good arm round Roscoe's neck, he succeeded in forcing him to release his grip and in throwing him heavily.

As he lay, his body projected through the doorway, out into the tunnel.

Philip left him huddled there, and went back to the table. He found Roscoe's flint and steel beneath his hand; but it was a full minute before he could summon his courage to strike a light, for the inferences from Roscoe's presence here in the pilot house began to crowd upon him now, grim and horrible. But he struck a spark at last, lighted a candle and looked around.

The reaction of relief turned him, for a moment, giddy, as the glance about the room convinced him that what he feared worst had not happened. But another thought occurred to him, almost at once, when he saw the cover had been removed from the top of the ice chimney.

In his mind, of course, that represented the way Roscoe had come. What, if Jeanne, unable for some reason to defend herself, had chosen, as the lesser evil, to fling herself over the cliff from the tunnel mouth?

The moment he thought of that he went out into the tunnel, stepping over Roscoe's body to do so. He went to the edge and looked over, but it was too dark to see. The light of the aurora which still blazed in the sky, dazzled his eyes, without lighting the surface of the world below.

He must go down there, in order to be sure. He had not stopped to furl his planes when he alighted, and they had wedged themselves sideways into the tunnel, still extended and so ready for flight in an emergency.

He righted them and slipped his arms through the loops that awaited them. He stood for a moment, testing the right wing tentatively. There was a play about it that he did not understand. So far as he could see nothing was broken. The fact that it was his own arm did not occur to him.

He was just turning to dive off the cliff-head when, suddenly, he saw the great form of the man he had supposed to be dead, rise and rush upon him.

Philip's knife had, indeed, inflicted a mortal wound, but a man of Roscoe's physique lets go of life slowly. He was bleeding to death, internally, but the process was, probably, retarded by his huddled position as he lay there in the tunnel.

So he had lain still and awaited his chance. Cayley was standing quite at the edge of the cliff, and the man's momentum carried him over. His clenching hands grasped Cayley's shoulders, and they went down together, over 600 feet of empty space.

For Cayley the space was all too little. As they went over he thought that he and his gigantic enemy were going down to death together. Instinctively, and much quicker than a man can think, he swept his great-fanail forward and flung himself back in an attempt to correct the balance destroyed by the great weight that was clinging to his shoulders.

They were, of course, bound to go down. Neither his strength nor the area of his planes was sufficient to support them both in the air. But in the position into which he had flung himself they would go down a little more slowly. He would gain, perhaps, a precious second more.

But he did not waste even an infinitesimal moment in any struggle against the force of gravity.

Twice, with all his might, he sent his left fist crashing against the face, the staring, horrible face, that confronted his own. But still that convulsive, dying grasp held fast.

They were now more than a bare 200 feet above the ice. With a supreme effort, an effort whose suddenness availed it better than its strength, he wrenched himself free and the great weight dropped off. Another effort, the instantaneous exertion of every ounce of force he possessed, corrected the sudden change of balance and prevented him from falling, like the great, inert mass he had just cast off.

Trembling, exhausted, he managed to blunder around in a half-circle, slanted down inland and stumbled to a landing on the beach, not 50 yards from the ice-clad ruins of the hut.

As he did so, the thought was in his mind that during his struggle in the air with Roscoe, he had heard a cry, which neither he nor his antagonist had uttered.

Rifle for Under Water Action.

When he is working in water infested by sharks and other sea monsters likely to do him harm, the diver has at present to rely for his safety on the use of the knife, or, failing that, on a quick return to the surface. Now comes the invention of Captain Grobl, a German diving instructor, who has constructed a rifle which can be fired under water, and is designed for the better arming of the diver. The most remarkable thing about this is that it fires, not bullets, but water, which is propelled with such force that it has an extraordinary power of penetration. Indeed, the inventor himself has pierced armor plate of medium thickness with the water jet from his weapon. The rifle has a stout barrel and is loaded with a cartridge cased in India rubber.

Another Pressing Need.

It's well enough to devote a lot of time and a good deal of prize money to the composition of a National anthem, but what's the matter with giving us a National wedding march, too? Must we be forever indebted to the marches of an erratic Bavarian and a visionary Deutscher?

Here's an opportunity for ambitious native composers.

IDEAL SHELTER FOR OUTING

Simple Arrangement That Does Away With Many Objectionable Features of Ordinary Tent.

When a tent is closed it is about as interesting as a London fog. When open it is invaded by all sorts of creeping things. A rain storm of a few days covers everything with blue mold. I have evolved the following relief: First, start with a floor the size of the tent you require. Ten by twelve feet is a convenient size and shape. This should be raised six inches from the ground. Next, on this flooring, build a light framework with pointed roof. The sides should be six feet in height. Cover all this with wire netting, using a screen door for entrance. The roof, if so desired, may be covered with canvas or other material; green burlap is desirable for this purpose and also for the inside curtains, which should be hung from the top of the room on all sides and so arranged that they may easily roll up and down, simply tying them with tape. I advise the green burlap because of its cool, restful tone, which alleviates the glare from the canvas. Over this screened room spread the usual canvas "fly" that roofs and protects the ordinary tent, letting it extend well beyond the ends and sides. It also might be well to have flaps at the front and back to close in case of severe storms. For invalids, for tuberculosis patients especially, I believe this to be superior to any of the other out-of-door arrangements now in use. It is inexpensive; the cost of the outfit will probably not exceed that of the ordinary canvas tent. When not in use it can easily be taken apart and stored. The wire netting if carefully rolled and cared for will last for years.—Belle Gray Taylor.

RECIPE FOR ORANGE PUDDING

Delicious Concoction Well Worth the Little Trouble It Takes to Make It.

One and one-half cups of flour, one and one-half teaspoons of baking powder, one cup of butter, three-fourths of a cup of sugar, four eggs, or three, with a little milk, four oranges. Grate the rind of the oranges, being sure not to grate any of the white, and put it aside in a separate vessel. Cream the butter and sugar well, add eggs, the grated orange rind, the flour, and lastly the baking powder. Put in a mold and steam for two hours. A very nice mold, if you have not a regular one, is a small lard pail, which, with this recipe leaves room for the pudding to swell, was a lid to put down good and tight on the pudding, and handle to lift it out with. Butter the inside of your pudding mold, do not look inside during the process of boiling, as that makes the pudding fall, and be sure that the water is kept to the level of the pudding. Add boiling, not cold or warm water.

Orange Sauce.—Squeeze out the juice of the oranges, and strain; two teaspoonsful of cornstarch, one-half pint of water, four spoonfuls of brown sugar. Boil sugar and water together, add starch to orange juice, boil until thick, all together, and pour around the pudding after you take it from the mold. Make the sauce just before taking the pudding from the mold, and have both piping hot when you take it to the table.

Stuffed Prunes.

A most delightful addition to the usual buffet "spread" served at card parties is the stuffed prune. We have had dates stuffed with nuts for years, and also the Weisbaden prunes filled with smaller prunes, but what I have reference to here is the home-made variety. The time and your sticky hands will be well repaid by the toothsome nature of the delicacy. Soak a pound of the best quality large prunes you can procure in sherry and water for about 20 minutes, then stone them carefully. Try not to break up the prune any more than necessary. Have a pound of dates also stoned and put a prepared date in the center of each prune and carefully press the opening together. Sprinkle again with sherry and roll in powdered sugar. Keep in a closely covered tin box until you are ready to serve them.—Exchange.

Striped Sandwiches.

Cut a number of slices of both white and brown bread. Slices must be quite thick, nearly one-half inch. Butter liberally and stack together five slices, first a brown, then a white, a brown, a white and a brown, pressing together firmly so they will hold. Slice down through this stack, making the slices the thickness wished for the sandwiches. The result is an exceedingly eatable and pretty striped sandwich, which can be triumphed into any shape desired.

Black Butter Sauce.

This receipt requires two table-spoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of vinegar and one teaspoonful of chopped parsley. Fry the butter in a stew pan until it is light brown, take off the fire and stir in the vinegar and chopped parsley.

Junket and Egg.

Add two eggs beaten to a froth and sweeten with four teaspoons of sugar to a pint of milk. Curdle with essence of pepsin or junket tablets. Pour into cups.

Pineapple Pie.

One can pineapple chopped, one cup milk, two-thirds cup sugar, three table-spoonfuls flour, two crusts.

DAIRY

"FLY TIME" AMONG THE COWS

Some Individual Animals Seem to Suffer More Than Others—Various Remedies Suggested.

(By WALTER B. LEUTZ.)

Midsummer is known as "fly time" in the dairyman's calendar. The marked falling off in the milk flow of the dairy cows at this season of the year is looked upon as unavoidable, and is attributed by many to the worry of the stock by flies. The failure to provide an abundance of succulent forage to supplement the parched pastures seems a trifling contributory cause of the lessening milk secretion, compared with the activity of the pesky, ubiquitous fly, especially at milking time.

The flies that are most numerous about cattle are known by their common names of the stable fly and the horn fly.

The stable fly resembles the house fly very much in appearance, but differs in having the mouth parts fitted for piercing the skin and sucking the blood of animals. The eggs of the stable fly are usually laid in horse manure, the female laying from 125 to 150 in a season. The period of development from egg to adult fly is about 15 days.

The horn fly is a new pest and was first noticed in this country about 1886. The first appearance of this fly was the cause of considerable alarm among the cattle men, and the experiment stations of the various states were appealed to for information in regard to the origin and life history of this insect and for suggestions as to agencies for repelling it.

The horn fly is a small, gray fly, very much like the house fly, but smaller, measuring about three-sixteenths of an inch in length. They have the strange habit of settling in great numbers about the base of a horn, which they sometimes completely cover, a habit which gives them their common name. They confine their attention to cattle. They burrow in the hair about the shoulder, the roots of the tail and other portions of the body where they are not easily dislodged. The injury done by the horn fly is by stinging, much like the mosquito. By means of a fine lancet they pierce the skin and suck the blood through the tube or sheath.

Some individual animals suffer more than others and dark colored animals more than light colored. These flies follow cattle to the barn at night and remain with them all the time.

Various remedies have been suggested by good authorities. Destruction of larvae in the droppings by application of lime or the immediate spreading and drying of the same.

Application of tobacco powder to destroy the flies.

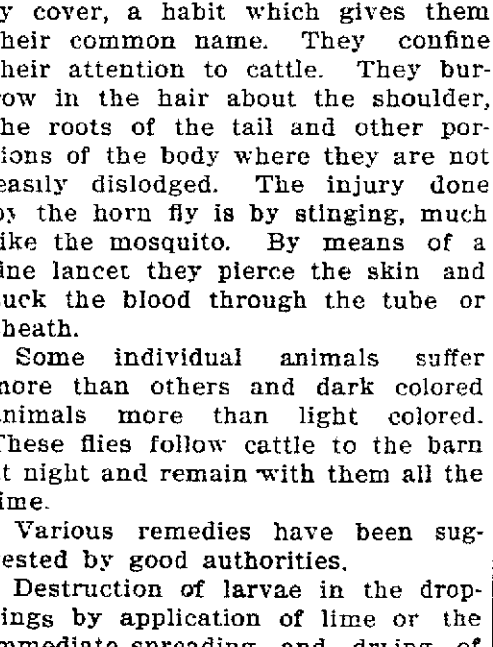

Application of one of the following repellents: Ten to fifteen per cent. kerosene in water.

Fish oil with small mixture of carbolic acid. Cottonseed oil, two parts and pine tar one part.

FEED SALT TO LIVE STOCK

Receptacle Shown in the Illustration Is Designed for Use Either in Field or Corral.

The salt receptacle shown in the illustration is designed for use in a field or corral. It affords free access to the stock for obtaining the requisite amount of salt, and at the same time protects the salt from the elements and prevents waste. The opening is protected by a hood which the animal shoves open by putting his nose under it and lifting upward. When the nose is withdrawn from the opening thus made, the hood drops down again by its own weight. A sufficient opening is always left to expose the salt and attract the stock.

Handling Cows in Summer.

There is a tradition that cows will do better in warm weather than in cold weather, but experience has disproved this fact. It is often easier to reproduce summer conditions in the winter stable than it is to thoroughly protect the stock from the pests that make them go dry in summer.

Equipment for Dairy Farm.

The cream separator, the silo and the manure spreader should find a place in the equipment of every dairy farm.

Food for the Growing Calf.

Growing calves should have such food as insures growth. Fat is not needed in the dairy calf. Keep the calves comfortable, summer and winter, and growth will follow as a natural result.

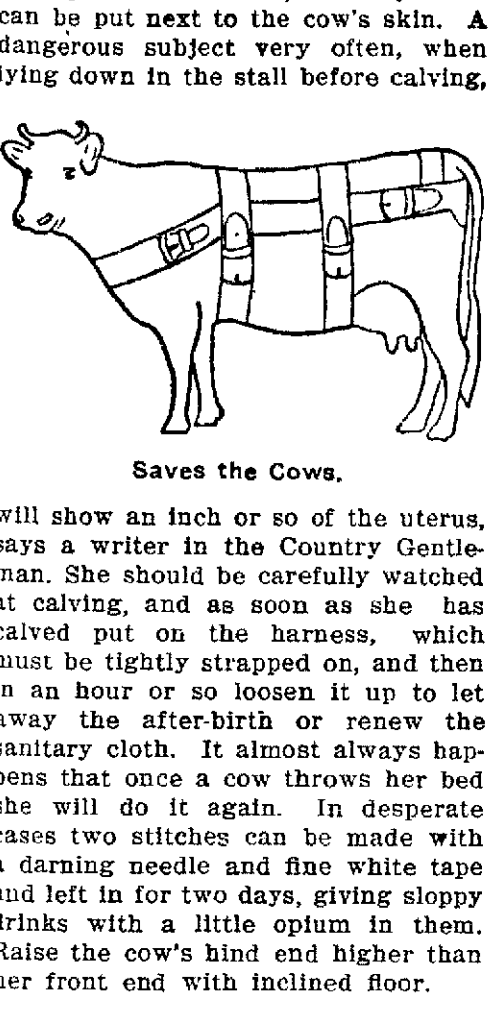

Best Milk Producer.

Dairy farmers should not raise or buy timothy hay for cows. Clover or alfalfa is much better as a milk producer.

SAVES MANY VALUABLE COWS

Harness Arrangement Will Prove of Greatest Aid to Animals During Calving Time.

Many valuable cows have been lost by the womb or calf-bed following the calf. In large herds a harness, as shown, will almost always keep in the bed when there is any danger. This must be kept on for 24 hours after calving, after which time there is not much danger. The part under the tail should be extra wide and so arranged that a clean, sanitary cloth can be put next to the cow's skin. A dangerous subject very often, when lying down in the stall before calving,

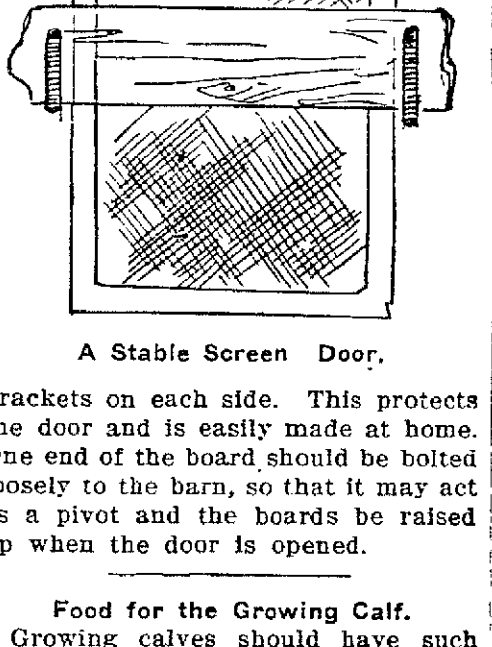

Saves the Cows.

will show an inch or so of the uterus, says a writer in the Country Gentleman. She should be carefully watched at calving, and as soon as she has calved put on the harness, which must be tightly strapped on, and then in an hour or so loosen it up to let away the after-birth or renew the sanitary cloth. It almost always happens that once a cow throws her bed she will do it again. In desperate cases two stitches can be made with a darning needle and fine white tape and left in for two days, giving sloppy drinks with a little opium in them. Raise the cow's hind end higher than her front end with inclined floor.

GOOD STABLE SCREEN DOOR

If Made of Strong Material It Can Be Secured by Wide Board to Drop Into Brackets.

If the screen door for the cow stable is made of strong material it can be secured by a wide board to drop into brackets on each side. This protects the door and is easily made at home. One end of the board should be bolted loosely to the barn, so that it may act as a pivot and the boards be raised up when the door is opened.

DAIRY NOTES

A cross bred cow is a mistake. Each cow's udder should be thoroughly cleansed before milking. Bloody milk or that from a sick cow should never be mixed with wholesome milk. The uncovered cans of milk should be kept in cold water until they are delivered to the creamery. The use of muslin in dairy windows instead of glass is said to lessen the danger from disease germs. The secret of success in the dairy business is, test the cows, keep records, figure, know and do not guess. The milk from a new milch cow should not be brought to the creamery until at least a full week after the cow has calved. The stable should not be cleaned or brushed nor should silage or roughage be fed until after all the cows of the herd are milked. All milk cans should be washed first in cold water then thoroughly cleansed with warm water and finally rinsed in scalding hot water. It really requires little care and attention to maintain milk and cream in a clean, sweet condition even during hot, sultry weather. The cow is not working for you, but instead she is your master. The better work you do for her the larger salary she will pay you. Who's oats, corn and wheat bran in equal parts with one-half part linseed meal added makes a good grain ration for the young calves. When calves have a habit of sucking each other's ears it is best to separate or tie them. After they get to eating grain foods there will be no more trouble from this source.

DISFIGURED WITH CRUSTS

"Some time ago I was taken with eczema from the top of my head to my waist. It began with scales on my body. I suffered untold itching and burning, and could not sleep. I was greatly disfigured with scales and crusts. My ears looked as if they had been most cut off with a razor, and my neck was perfectly raw. I suffered untold agony and pain. I tried two doctors who said I had eczema in its fullest stage, and that it could not be cured. I then tried other remedies to no avail. At last, I tried a set of the genuine Cuticura Remedies, which cured me of eczema when all else had failed, therefore I cannot praise them too highly.

"I suffered with eczema about ten months, but am now entirely cured, and I believe Cuticura Remedies are the best skin cure there is." (Signed) Miss Mattie J. Shaffer, R. F. D. 1, Box 8, Dancy, Miss., Oct. 27, 1910.

"I had suffered from eczema about four years when boils began to break out on different parts of my body. It started with a fine red rash. My back was affected first, when it also spread over my face. The itching was almost unbearable at times. I tried different soaps and salves, but nothing seemed to help me until I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. One box of them cured me entirely. I recommended them to my sister for her baby who was troubled with tooth eczema, and they completely cured her baby." (Signed) Mrs. F. L. Marberger, Drexelsville, Pa., Sept. 6, 1910.

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy of known composition. Ask your neighbors. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

WHO'S WHO AND WHY

HAS UNWATERED THE MAINE

General Bixby, chief of the army engineers, who has had charge of the unwatering of the Maine, recently expressed the opinion that the destruction of the battleship was caused by the explosion of her magazines. No external explosion, in his judgment, could have caused the conditions observed in the remains of the vessel. But General Bixby added that the primary cause of the explosion would likely never be known, so the mystery of the Maine, unlike the hull itself, may never be revealed. General Bixby said that unless the fragment of a torpedo could be found there is no way of connecting an outside agency with the blowing up of the vessel.

The destruction to the vessel was such, says General Bixby, and the deterioration has been so great that it is impossible to tell whether the ship was blown up from a force within or without. The greatest force, however, was from the inside, indicating that the forward magazine had exploded. Whether this was from a sympathetic explosion caused by a torpedo from the outside may forever remain a mystery.

Many will persist in believing that the American court of inquiry was right in attributing the awful result to two distinct explosions, the first of which was external and the cause of the second. A Washington opinion is that there is no inconsistency between the court's findings and the view of General Bixby, and that the Sampson board, which decided twelve years ago that the battleship Maine was sunk by a torpedo or mine, will be vindicated in the final findings of naval officers is the opinion expressed generally at the navy department.

MAN AT THE CUSTOMS GATE

William Loeb, Jr., is the collector of the Port of New York. He is the Man at the Gate. Against him come yearly 300,000 tourists and a million immigrants in the fleet of 5,000 ships. All manner of merchandise goes through his gate—more than a thousand million dollars worth in a year. This man has to sort it and appraise it and tax it if it is taxable. Of all the people and the merchandise that enter the United States seven-tenths come through the port of New York and Loeb stands there with a staff to take the toll for the government on all that stupendous amount of traffic.

Although he has been no more than 27 months in office he has increased the gettings of the government by more than $15,000,000. He has enforced the commandment, "Thou shalt not smuggle" as fully on the rich as upon the poor. He has locked up nearly a dozen persistent smugglers in Federal prisons and has humbled the pride of a hundred defiant tourists by having them arrested and heavily fined.

Mr. Loeb says smuggling, even by nice people, is a crime—just as much a crime as counterfeiting or passing bad checks. The law that declares it to be a crime is as plain as daylight.

It is this law that was turned over in 1909, in a somewhat dusty and cobwebbed condition, to William Loeb, who had been for ten years secretary and general handy man to Theodore Roosevelt. Loeb was to enforce this, and he was to receive a salary of $12,000 a year for enforcing it.

FOSTER AND HIS MODEST FEE

Through his influence with the state department and our minister to China, as well as with Chinese officials whom he had known when on a diplomatic mission to China in connection with the settlement of the war between China and Japan, Mr. Foster persuaded the Chinese government to consent to the payment of this claim out of the $2,000,000 reserve, though the case was not associated with the Boxer claims.

TO PUBLISH A WORLD PAPER

Another movement is now under way to bring the nations of the world into closer and more friendly relations. The International Journal, soon to be published in Paris and which will essentially be an international organ, and it is thought will be a long step in promoting harmony and friendship among nations.

The promoter of this new step in journalism is Theodore Stanton, son of the late Elizabeth Cady Stanton, one of the noted women of her time and a pioneer in the cause of woman suffrage. He has sounded the sentiment in the various capitals of Europe relative to the project and has found it favorable.

While French will be the language mainly used in the publication, other languages will be employed. The paper will have no policy, in the restricted sense of the term, but will aim to publish truthfully and accurately both sides of all questions of world-wide interest. A large corps of editors will be employed. Transient matters will not be dealt with, but everything will be considered from the standpoint of international importance.

Much of the misunderstandings between people are due to partial and incomplete information on subjects which are matters of international interest. When both sides of great questions are studied feelings are likely to be rendered more in accordance with reason and logic than sentiment.

CURE THAT SORE THROAT

Sore throat is inflammation of the mucous membrane of the throat, and if this membrane happens to be at all sensitive a predisposition to sore throat will exist.

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic is both a preventative and a cure for sore throat because it possesses extraordinary cleansing, healing and germicidal qualities. Just a little in a glass of water, used as a gargle, will quickly relieve all soreness and strengthen the mucous membrane of the throat, and thus overcome all tendency to sore throat.

Paxtine is far superior to liquid antiseptics or Peroxide for all toilet and hygienic uses.

Paxtine may be obtained at any drug store, 25 and 50c a box, or sent postpaid upon receipt of price by The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass. Send for a free sample.

DECIDED NOT TO OPEN IT.

Caller—I was thinking about opening a drug store in this neighborhood. Do you think one is needed around here?

Resident—Great idea. There's no place within ten blocks where a man can buy stamps or see the city directory.

Seventy-one Years in a Shoe Shop.

Charles H. Wilson of Troy, N. Y., occupies the unique position of having been in business in one building for 71 years; at least he will have completed 71 years in the shoe business at 242-244 River street August 12 next. This record, it is believed, can be equaled by few if any shoe retailers in this country. Mr. Wilson has also been in business for himself for more than 50 years. Mr. Wilson is today just as much in active business as he was almost three-quarters of a century ago when as a thirteen-year-old lad he entered the employ of John Leonard Williams of Troy. To be exact, that was August 12, 1840. Mr. Williams kept a shoe store at 242-244 River street in a building which had been erected in 1803, and so the building, now occupied by Mr. Wilson for his retail shoe business is one of the oldest buildings in Troy.

Work for Extinction of Tuberculosis

Exhibitions showing in graphic form the prevention of consumption have been shown in every state in the United States, except Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico and Wyoming, and also in most of the Canadian provinces and in Mexico, Porto Rico and Cuba, according to a statement made by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. There are now 25 states and 16 cities having permanent and traveling exhibits besides the two operated by the National association itself, and the total number of similar displays is over 200, including about 150 small school exhibits. The first tuberculosis exhibit in America was shown by the Maryland Tuberculosis commission in January, 1904. In 1906 there were four such exhibits.

FALSE HUNGER

A Symptom of Stomach Trouble Corrected by Good Food.

There is, with some forms of stomach trouble, an abnormal craving for food which is frequently mistaken for a "good appetite." A lady teacher writes from Carthage, Mo., to explain how with good food she dealt with this sort of hurtful hunger.

"I have taught school for fifteen years, and up to nine years ago had good, average health. Nine years ago, however, my health began to fail, and continued to grow worse steadily, in spite of doctor's prescriptions, and everything I could do. During all this time my appetite continued good, only the more I ate the more I wanted to eat—I was always hungry.

"The first symptoms of my breakdown were a distressing nervousness and a loss of flesh. The nervousness grew so bad that finally it amounted to actual prostration. Then came stomach troubles, which were very painful, constipation which brought on piles, dyspepsia and severe nervous headaches.

"The doctors seemed powerless to help me, said I was overworked, and at last urged me to give up teaching, if I wished to save my life.

"But this I could not do. I kept on at it as well as I could, each day growing more wretched, my will-power alone keeping me up, till at last a good angel suggested that I try a diet of Grape-Nuts food, and from that day to this I have found it delicious always appetizing and satisfying.

"I owe my restoration to health to Grape-Nuts. My weight has returned and for more than two years I have been free from the nervousness, constipation, piles, headaches, and all the ailments that used to punish me so, and have been able to work freely and easily." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

For the Hostess

A Daisy Table.

In many localities daisies grow wild in profusion, a hostess who rejoiced in fields of them used this delightful combination; she made long chains of daisies and smilax and outlined the places at table which was set with a clumsy lace cloth over pale blue. The candlesticks were of glass with white candles shaded with white over blue with a fringe of white beads. The center piece was a gilded basket with daisies, the handle tied with a huge bow of white and blue satin ribbon. The guests were all members of an embroidery class, so for favors there were gilded embroidery hoops tied with pale blue satin ribbon. For place cards there were hand-painted marguerites the petals cut out, names of the guests being done in gilt.

At each plate was a corsage bouquet of daisies tied with blue ribbon. Every one exclaimed "How lovely" when the doors were opened and the pretty table disclosed; the china was white gold band and the effect was so cool and refreshing. A simple summer menu was served, the salad being the only thing characteristic of the decorations. It was made by hard boiling eggs, cutting the whites lengthwise to make petals and mashing the well seasoned yolks to form the round centers of the "daisies" which were carefully formed on the blanched hearts of head lettuce.

For a Japanese Party.

Write the invitations as the natives do—up and down, instead of across, using the regular Japanese stationery, which comes in rolls, or use paper napkins. Sometimes I have seen little notes enclosed in tiny lanterns or tightly clasped in the arms of small Japanese dolls, if either are used, of course the invitations are delivered by messengers.

There is scarcely any limit to the decorations, as there are so many articles to use, screens, fans, parasols, bead potteries, bamboo tables and chairs, with a profusion of pink tissue paper cherry blossoms. Burn Japanese incense; if cards are played, lovely ones are obtainable with Japanese scenes on the backs; instead of a bell use a gong for starting the games, and for keeping score use small Japanese favors of which there is a great variety. For finding partners it is a pretty idea to match fans. Any number of Oriental articles are obtainable from which to select prizes, such as dollies, lacquered boxes, bronzes, carved ivory, handleless cups in Canton china. Serve ice-tea punch during the game, then a Japanese salad composed of a number of vegetables served in chrysanthemum paper cases, cherry ice, rice cakes, Chinese nuts, and, for fun, chop sticks could be passed tied with yellow ribbon for souvenirs. Use on this occasion a good quality of tissue paper napkins. While there is nothing very new in the Japanese scheme, it is always effective and people never seem to tire of it.

The Tin Wedding.

Invitations for this delightful informal tin wedding anniversary party were issued on cards smoothly covered with tin foil, the writing being done with a dull pencil. The hostess carried a bouquet encased in a tin funnel, and the guests sent all sorts of tin presents most elaborately wrapped: a tin dipper held white roses, a bread pan served as a punch bowl, a dust pan arrived tied with white satin ribbon, tin candlesticks, apple corer, toaster, canisters for tea and spices were all carefully sent in boxes by special messengers. Opening these parcels and reading congratulatory telegrams and special delivery letters furnished a good share of the evening's entertainment. All of these had been cleverly planned by the guests, and there were several good toasts arranged in rhymes. Refreshments were served on tin and the bridegroom was the recipient of cigars ingeniously done up in tin receptacles.

IN VOGUE

Tailored suits of linen or silk are showing revers of bright colors.

Some smart shoes have white buckskin tops and patent leather vamps.

French millinery shows the tendency for ribbon, silk and velvet bows.

Braid is a factor to be reckoned with in the planning of new dresses or suits.

Irregular shapes and plenty of uncurled ostrich plumage mark the latest large hats as a rule.

Striped sheer linen is favored for simple little frocks, china blue and white being the most popular.

Artificial flowers are being worn in bouquet form on tailor made suits or afternoon dresses, the small flowers being used. The lily of the valley, sweet pea, heather and forget-me-nots are claiming great favor.

Many of the lingerie dresses are distinguished by the new collar. The latest evolution of the collar is a deep, square, or rounded lace cape collar reaching the belt in the back, and sometimes hanging just a little below it.

THE first is for a girl of 8 to 10 years, and looks well in navy blue caseament cloth; two inverted pleats turning towards the front are made each side; the top is set to a prettily shaped yoke that is in pale blue braided with navy, a band of the same being placed across foot. The sleeve trimming and waistband match the yoke.

Materials required: 3 yards 40 inches wide, 1/4 yard 24 inches wide for trimming.

For the second blue zephyr and all-over embroidery are used; the dress is for a girl of 10 to 12 years.

The yoke of the bodice is of embroidery, so are the straps down front, and the sleeve bands are of the same material.

MORE EXCELLENT REPORTS FROM WESTERN CANADA

Grains Are Heading Out Rapidly and Harvest Is Now Approaching With a Great Demand for Harvest Help.

Last week it was pointed out in these columns that there would be a yield of about 200,000,000 bushels of wheat throughout Western Canada, an increase of about 100,000,000 over the previous year, and that the demand for farm help was very great. Confirmation of this news is to hand and the cry still is for more help. The Canadian authorities are hopeful that the friends of the 400,000 or 500,000 Americans who have gone to Canada during the last few years will come to the help of these people and induce as many able-bodied men as they possibly can to take advantage of the low rate which is being offered from all points on the Canadian Boundary, and particulars of which can be had from any of the following Agents of the Canadian Government: M. V. McInnes, 176 Jefferson Avenue, Detroit, Mich.; C. A. Laurier, Marquette, Mich.; J. S. Crawford, Syracuse, N. Y.; Thos. Hetherington, Room 202, 73 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.; H. M. Williams, 413 Gardner Bldg., Toledo, Ohio; Geo. Aird, 216 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Indiana; C. J. Broughton, Room 412, M. L. & T. Bldg., Chicago, Ill.; Geo. A. Hall, 2nd Floor, 125 Second Street, Milwaukee, Wis.; E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson Street, St. Paul, Minn.; Chas. Pilling, Clifford Block, Grand Forks, N. D.; J. B. Carboneau, Jr., 217 Main Street, Biddeford, Me.; J. M. MacLachlan, Box 197, Watertown, S. D.; W. V. Bennett, Room 4, Bee Bldg., Omaha, Neb.; W. H. Rogers, 125 West 9th Street, Kansas City, Mo.; Benj. Davies, Room 6, Dunn Block, Great Falls, Montana; J. N. Grieve, Auditorium Building, Spokane, Wash.

Every facility will be afforded men of the right stamp to secure advantage of these low rates. To those who propose to go, it may be said that they will have this splendid opportunity of securing first hand information as to the excellent producing character of the lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. They will have the opportunity of seeing some of the greatest wheat fields in the world and probably the largest yield of wheat, oats and barley that has ever been grown on the Continent. And all this on land some of which cost the settler only the $10.00 necessary to enter for his homestead, or, if he purchased, in some cases, costing him from $7.00 to $10.00 per acre, but which is now worth from $15.00 to $20.00 per acre. Even at these prices the land is remarkably cheap as will be realized when the statement is made that from 20 to 25 bushels per acre and over of wheat are grown, netting the farmer from $8.00 to $10.00 per acre; and this on land that he got for nothing or paid merely a nominal price. In fact the production shows that $18.00 to $20.00 per acre would be a nominal price for land that would produce as these lands produce.

And Then He Escaped. "William," said Mrs. Peckem, sternly, "did you ever stop to think that some one might steal me when you are away?"

"Well," responded the poor husband, with a far-away look, "I was a little alarmed when a horse thief was prowling these parts last week."

Mrs. Peckem stiffened up haughtily. "A horse thief, eh?"

"Yes, I heard that he carried off two or three nags from this district. And then Peckem made a bee-line for the door."

Making It Legal.

"We don't know what to do about Piute Pete," said the Crimmon Gulch citizen. "He was a real good feller, but he would be careless about shootin' up the populace."

"Did you straighten out the matter?"

"To some extent; we elected him sheriff, thereby makin' it look a little more legal."
